NEW MADRID - Glen Ray Richardson, 27, Matthews, pleaded guilty to a charge of grand larceny and was sentenced to five years in prison by Judge William L. Ragland in circuit court this morning.

Richardson was arrested March 3 and charged with the theft of an auto owned by L. L. Riley of New Madrid.

Judge Ragland revoked the probation of Leroy Harris, 20, Lilbourn, and sentenced him to two years each on charges of burglary and larceny, the sentences to run consecutively.

Harris had been granted the parole after pleading guilty May 23 in circuit court to a charge of house burglary at Lilbourn in May.

WASHINGTON (AP) - Twenty years ago this summer, foreign aid, as it is known today, was born.

On June 5, 1947, Gen. George Catlett Marshall, President Truman's secretary of state, laid down at a Harvard College commencement his dramatic plan for the economic rebuilding of war - ravaged Europe.

The plan was to bear his name. The first broad, multi - country U.S. foreign aid program, it was to become the predecessor of all subsequent U.S. overseas assistance programs.

"The truth of the matter," Marshall said at Harvard, "is that Europe's requirements for the next three of four years of foreign goods and other essential products -- principally from America -- are so much greater than her ability to pay, that she must have substantial additional help or face economic, social and political deterioration of a very grave character.

"The remedy lies in breaking the vicious circle and restoring the confidence of the European people in the economic future of their own countries and of Europe as a whole."

The economies of the European nations at that time had been devastated by World War II. Hard cash reserves were being swallowed up by vital imports from the United States. U.S. strategists feared that if Europe's economies collapsed, the Communists would move in.

Early estimates were that the western European countries could recover economically in four years, with perhaps $25 billion in U.S. aid. Congress authorized a start of the program, beginning April 1948, under the then -new Economic Cooperation Administration - predecessor of today's Agency for International Development. Paul Gray Hoffman, a former president of the Studebaker Corp., was picked to run it. (He is now director of the United Nations Special Fund.) The European governments established the Organization for European Economic Cooperation to chart the use of Marshall Plan funds for their recovery.

During the fiscal years 1949-1952, the United States poured $13.7 billion into western Europe's economic rehabilitation. Some of the countries regained their economic momentum faster than the 4-year period originally expected, and the total U.S. aid for their economic rebuilding fell well below original U.S. estimates.

U.S. commodities shipped to western Europe under the Marshall Plan included $2.7 billion in foodstuffs, $532 million in feeds and fertilizer, $1.6 billion in fuel $1.4 billion in cotton, $2 billion in other raw materials and semi - finished products, and $1.9 billion in machinery and vehicles. The rest of the $13.7 billion covered miscellaneous items ranging from $53 million for technical services to $892 million for ocean freight.

During this 1949 - 1952 Marshall Plan period, Belgium - Luxembourg received $567 million in econmic assistance from the United States; Denmark $273 million; France $2.7 billion; West Germany $2.5 billion; Iceland $29 million; Ireland $147 million; Italy $1.5 billion; the Netherlands $982 million; Norway $255 million; Portugal $51 million; Spain $53 million; and the United Kingdom $3.2 billion.

Given to the West European countries on a regional, or multi-nation basis, was another $407 million in U.S. economic help. Result: A Europe more vigorous and prosperous than it had ever been. Also, a pattern for world help of poor nations by the rich.

THE LIONS CLUB had its regular meeting Wednesday at the miniature golf course. Twenty nine members played golf and ate a picnic lunch. Lee Bowman and Dick Inman tied with 41 for first place honors. Actress Jayne Mansfield Dies in Crash

NEW ORLEANS (AP)— Beautiful Jayne Mansfield and two men were killed early today when their car rammed the rear of a truck slowed by a cloud of mosquito fog across the highway.

It happened on a U.S. 90 curve near the Rigolets, the waterway connection between Lake Pontchartrain and the Gulf of Mexico, in New Orleans. It was about 2:25 a.m.

Killed with the voluptuous 34-year-old Hollywood actress were Samuel S. Brody, who was her lawyer and companion, and the 20-year-old chauffeur, Ronnie Harrison of Mississippi City.

Police said three of Miss Mansfield's children, asleep in the back seat of the big gray car, were injured. Physicians said they were in fair condition. They are Marie, 3, Mickey Jr., 8, and Zoltan, 6, her children by muscleman Mickey Hargitay.

Two of Miss Mansfield's four Chihuahua dogs also died in the shredded auto, which jammed up under the back of the truck trailer.

"It was the most dreadful thing I've ever seen," said George Carmichael, head of the New Orleans mosquito control unit, who was called to the scene by the driver of the insecticide fogging truck.

Miss Mansfield had left Biloxi, Miss., about midnight and was en route to New Orleans where she was scheduled to appear on a television program at noon.

Police said the actress was decapitated.

The accident happened about 30 miles east of downtown New Orleans on a winding, narrow stretch of the two-lane route—known as the Old Spanish Trail.

Richard Rambo, around 40, of Pensacola, Fla., driver of the truck, said the car appeared suddenly from the rear and ran beneath the truck's trailer. Rambo was not hurt.

A doctor at Charity Hospital said Miss Mansfield's children were undergoing X rays.

"None of them seems critical," he said. "We want to keep them here for observation, pending arrival of some relatives."

The hospital said Mickey suffered a fractured arm, while the

Two Night Thefts

Crowell's Service Station, 133 West Malone, was burglarized of about $75 Wednesday night or early today, police reported.

A suspect has been arrested in connection with the burglary and charges are expected to be filed against him later today. He was arrested on a charge of public intoxication.

Sgt. Ruben Templeton discovered the burglary at 3:41 a.m. on a routine check of the building. He noticed glass on a rear door of the station had been broken and the cigarette machine had been opened.

About $44 of the stolen money was contained in a bank bag hidden in the station, and about $9 was taken from the vending machine. The remainder of the money was taken from the cash register.

The burglar apparently cut himself on the door glass.

Police are seeking another man believed to have been involved in the breakin. Templeton arrested the suspect at 5:30 a.m. today. He had a cut on his right arm.

Another breakin was reported to police at 8:15 a.m. today by Claude Turner, owner of Turner's Garage, 106 East Gladys. An electric heavy - duty shop drill valued at $140 was reported stolen from the garage. Entry was gained by removing a plywood board, which had been placed in a rear window, and unlatching the door. Patrolman Charles E. Humphries investigated.

Illinois Man and Ironton Girl Killed

David John Cunbow, 40, Clarendon Hill, Ill., was killed when his car left the highway and overturned last night at 6:05 p.m. on highway 61, two miles south of Old Appleton, and 17-year-old Glenda Sue Racer, Ironton, died at 6:40 a.m. from a fractured skull, yesterday, as the result of an accident in Ironton the night before.

Cunbow said driving a 1967 Mercury south and started to pass a truck when an approaching car caused him to go to the shoulder, run into a ditch and overturn.

His body was taken to the McCombs Funeral Home in Jackson.

A 1956 Chevrolet driven by Carilyn Joan Prier, 17, Tuesday slid on wet pavement, causing her to lose control, leave highway 21 in Ironton and strike a building.

Glenda Racer, a passenger, died in St. Mary's hospital, Ironton, while Misses Prier and Judy Ann Racer, 12, were injured critically, and taken to the St. Marys hospital in Ironton. All were from Ironton.

The body of Miss Racer was taken to the White Funeral Home in Ironton.

Four persons were injured on Interstate 55, two miles south of Cape Girardeau, Wednesday at 12:40 p.m.

A 1966 Chevrolet station wagon, driven by Betty Harrell, 58, Chaffee, came up too fast behind a 1963 Chevrolet, driven by Judith Poole, 27, Cape Girardeau, striking the car and causing it to hit a railing.

Injured in the Poole car were Kimberly Poole, 8, and Roger Poole 7, both of Cape Girardeau, cut and cruised. They were treated by a Cape Girardeau physician.

The Herrell woman received cuts and bruises on her knees and hands, and Sol Dockins, 83, a passenger in her car, had an injured spine and neck. Both were taken to the Southeast Missouri hospital in Cape Girardeau.

Rolwing Denounces Meat Inspection Bill

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Despite the charge of one Democrat that "this is the greatest political boondoggle we're going to see in a long time," House majority Democrats today passed and sent to Gov. Warren E. Hearnes authority to set up a state meat inspection system in the agriculture department.

Rep. David Rolwing, D-Charleston — Hearnes' home town — withdrew his amendment that would have forced packing houses to pay the cost of the inspections.

He said it was apparent his amendment "has about as much chance as the proverbial snowball." He also said the roll calls today indicated that "someone did a little rendering overnight."

And he hoped, he said, that some members who were changing their votes would really get the political appointments they apparently were promised for their switches.

A Republican amendment, to limit the number of inspectors to 50, was knocked off on a partisan vote despite the charge that only those seeking a boost in political patronage could oppose it.

Earlier, the House had reconsidered and defeated an amendment offered during Wednesday's near-riotous night session. It was estimated the cost of the inspection program, now generally covered by federal and local meat inspection teams, would come to about $400,000 a year.

Reconsideration of the amendment was asked today by Rep. E. J. Cantrell, D-Overland, the House appropriations chairman who normally questions any new program that will cost money. This time he apparently had no qualms about finding the money for the meat inspection plan.

The Senate completed action today on a bill giving the State Park Board power to build and lease plush resorts at state parks.

The vote sending the bill to the governor was 27-4. The House had acted previously.

Under the plan, the board could issue revenue bonds to build the resorts, then lease them to private operators for 25 years. Proposals have been made for such facilities at the Lake of the Ozarks and Table Rock parks.

The Senate also approved setting up a number of interim study committees.

They would investigate crime and court procedures, legislative problems and procedures, livestock, dairy, grain and other agricultural problems and mining and mine safety.

Also sent to the governor was a bill to let the State Water Pollution Board transmit federal funds to local water control districts. The federal government would contribute 50 per cent, the state 25 per cent and the local units 25 per cent.

The bill would allow a new sewer district to be set up in the Little Blue watershed in Jackson County.

The House passed its own version of a pay raise for top officers of the State Highway Department and sent it back to the Senate.

As the bill cleared the Senate it would have given chief engineer M.J. Snider $25,000 a year. The House version cut that to $22,500. He now gets $19,500.

Opponents to the raises accused top officials of promising pay raises for the lower echelon as soon as they got boosts. Then when their pay was raised, opponents said, the little men were ignored.

Both houses were generally ineffective in night sessions Wednesday despite the fact the session must end by midnight Friday.

The Senate sent to the governor a bill to pay to survivors any vacation pay due a state employe at the time of his death. Otherwise, Senate action was on bills that had to be sent back to the House.

The House did even less. The members relaxed at a barbecue and beer dinner provided by two of the members.

Back on the job they attempted to pass a bill recommended by Dexter Davis, state commissioner of agriculture, to enlarge his staff so Missouri could start inspecting meat.

Both Democrats and Republicans tried to amend the bill.

Rep. David Rolwing, D-Charleston, suggested the meat inspectors be merit system (civil service) employes in the otherwise political patronage department.

A Republican amendment would put the inspection procedure under the Division of Health, already under the merit system.

Both were defeated by the Democratic leadership. Finally a Republican, Rep. Joseph W. Hill of Kansas City, won adoption of

Israel Urged to Relent

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Pressure mounted on Israel today at the emergency session of the U.N. General Assembly to reverse its annexation of the Old City of Jerusalem.

Fifteen nonaligned nations submitted a resolution to the Assembly Wednesday calling on the Israeli government to withdraw its troops from all the territory seized from Egypt, Jordan and Syria in the six-day war that began June 5.

Introducing the resolution, Ambassador Danilo Lekic of Yugoslavia said the Old City was threatened with full integration into Israel and called for the 122-nation Assembly to adopt his resolution by Friday.

But meanwhile the Israeli government accomplished the integration with a proclamation enlarging the city limits of "Israeli Jerusalem" to include the Old City and some adjacent territory seized from Jordan.

Another resolution was reported in preparation expressing concern over steps the Israelis have taken regarding the Old City, declaring these invalid, and calling on Israel to do nothing further to prejudice the future status of the Old City. Jordan, Pakistan, Turkey, Spain and Peru were among the nations preparing the resolution.

Under the original U.N. partition plan for Palestine, Jerusalem was to be an international city, but Israel took the new part of the city during the 1948-49 Palestine war and Jordan seized the Old City. The Israelis drove the Jordanian army from the Old City — which contains the bulk of the Christian, Jewish and Moslem holy places — at the start of the June 5-11 war.

In a statement issued here Wednesday night, Jordan's King Hussein said his government viewed "with utmost concern the arbitrary measures taken by the Israeli authorities to effect the annexation of the Jordanian part of Jerusalem."

He called these steps "unacceptable and intolerable" and said "the whole world should stand firm" against them.

The U.S. State Department in a statement also warned Israel that its "hasty administrative action cannot be regarded as determining the future of the Holy places or the status of Jerusalem in relation to them."

The nonaligned resolution submitted by Yugoslavia was intended as a compromise to supplant a Soviet proposal to condemn Israel for aggression and demand withdrawal of its forces and reparations for Arab property destroyed in the fighting.

The new resolution dropped the provisions for condemnation and reparations and asked the Security Council to consider, after the withdrawal of Israeli troops, "questions pertaining to the situation in the area."

The United States said it would oppose the resolution despite Washington's warning to Israel on Jerusalem. A source in the U.S. mission said the resolution was "totally wrong" in calling for withdrawal without making any approach to a solution of the basic causes of the Arab-Israeli conflict.

Still another resolution on the over-all situation was under preparation by a group of Western countries and countries from Latin America, Africa and Asia.

It reportedly would call for withdrawal of Israeli troops if the Arab nations end their state of war against Israel. It also would provide for a U.N. mediator to try to work out the other complex issues in the Middle East tangle.

This resolution was reported to have U.S. backing.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

Improved standards in road edge striping and lane markings may one day save your life - even when you're driving in that huge "traffic snarl" known as New York City.

To give motorists an extra edge of safety, America's first city is decorating 180 miles of limited access highways in the five boroughs. Edge lining and lane marking is expected to improve driving safety during the day and at night.

Using special trucks and reflectorized paint, traffic department crews are spraying a solid white line four inches wide along malls and curbs that divide paved roadways and shoulders of the city's expressways.

A double benefit is gained from the white lines, Henry A. Barnes, traffic commissioner, explained.

Striping the malls and curbing, he said, establishes guide lines to help motorists determine the width of the roadway. Secondly, the striping provides a sharp distinction between the ordinary road surface and the "treated" curbs or shoulders which, at night, glow in a car's headlights. Such edging and striping proves especially valuable as a safety feature at night or during inclement weather.

The painting program, Barnes stated, may well be a perpetual procedure in Manhattan's effort to reduce accidents. When the present program is done, in about one year, another will be started, he said.

Techniques of painting on canvas and on pavement can require a far different brush stroke, as Barnes observed.

Pavement painting, for example, is done in several ways.

Where there is a slanted curb, the curb itself is painted. But a straight curb requires a different technique, in which paint is laid six inches away from the curb. This is designed to prevent drivers from running into or jumping the curb.

When there is no curb, painting is also done six inches in from the edge line to discourage drivers from wandering off the road.

Will New York retain a number one rating in such safety applications? Barnes believes it will, although edge striping and lane marking are becoming common safety features in many cities today.

THE LONG AND SHORT OF IT

The appearance of Missouri's junior United States Senator, Edward V. Long, at last weekend's annual meeting of the Missouri Cotton Producers Assn. would prompt the conclusion that Bowling Green's most famous citizen does not intend to withdraw from political life at the end of his term in 1968. At least, it can be observed that he does not intend to withdraw voluntarily.

Senator Long's political and legal tribulations are, by now, well known to readers of this newspaper, which has commented on them extensively. The comments are also well known to Senator Long, who observed to a staff member of The Daily Democrat at the MCPA meeting that some of this publication's recent editorials had been less than kind toward him. This is an understatement, but we plead guilty.

We are not, however, guilty of condoning such practices as Senator Long has been following during his Senate career. Nor are we guilty of thinking that Senator Long, despite his close organized labor connections, will be any asset to the Democratic party in 1968.

Next year's election may well prove to be, in Missouri as well as elsewhere, a Republican election year. Whether it is depends in large measure upon the Democrats and upon those party members who are selected in the primaries.

If Missouri Democrats care to renominate Senator Long to head their state ticket in 1968, then we predict that the political careers of a good many Democrats in Jefferson City will be terminated as of January 1, 1969.

We believe it is that serious, and before the Senate Ethics Committee gets through, we believe it will be even worse.

Indeed, if Senator Long is on the ticket, we predict the Democrats of Missouri will be on the short end of the 1968 election totals.

It's as simple as that.

Two major crashes in the same state and a few days apart claimed the lives of eight people and injured two others.

Both accidents had the same cause: wrong-way driving.

Wrong-way driving, in which a driver travels against traffic on an expressway, is becoming a bigger problem, police reports indicate.

Your chances of meeting such a driver - or inadvertently becoming one yourself - are also increasing as more and more miles of expressways are added and the Interstate system nears completion.

Driving in the wrong direction, which frequently results in head-on collisions, can be a fatal mistake. Wrong-way accidents, according to J. C. Womack, California highway engineer, are fatal six times more often than other driving accidents.

What are the causes of wrong-way driving? Traffic experts have discovered several.

Driving while intoxicated is perhaps the leading reason. Of 500 wrong-way drivers interviewed by the California Highway Patrol one-third had been drinking. An equal number were honestly confused. One-sixth had strayed over the median strip to the wrong side of the highway by carelessness. A small number were illiterate and could not read traffic signs.

What is being done to stop wrong-way driving?

Many traffic experts believe that reflective "Wrong Way" signs used with "Do Not Enter" signs are the best solution to prevent drivers from entering expressways on exit ramps or leaving expressways by entrance ramps.

In Chicago, for example, large reflective signs, highly visible in headlights at night, are being erected on both sides of many exit ramps on the Kennedy expressway. Installation of such signs is planned for other expressways in the area.

According to the Michigan department of state highways, "Do Not Enter - Wrong Way" warning signs posted at exit ramps have substantially reduced wrong-way movements and head-on collisions.

If you encounter a wrong-way driver, don't try to warn him, one safety expert said. Signal a right turn, pull off on the shoulder and get out of the way, he advised.

THE VURST DAY OF SUMMER

This is a summer of anniversaries. New York City will celebrate the 50th year of Guggenheim Memorial Concerts in Central Park on Wednesday, June 21, the first day of summer. Appropriately, nickel beer, nickel ice cream, and nickel hot dogs will be served.

Just a few days later, the Coney Island Chamber of Commerce will celebrate what it claims as the 100th anniversary of the birth of the hot dog. The Chamber asserts that in the summer of 1867 a Coney Island pie hawker named Charlie Feltman put a hot sausage in a toasted wiener roll and sold it for a dime as a frankfurter - after his native Frankfurt, Germany. The Coney Island celebration will be centered on Nathan's Famous, the boardwalk stand which has sold more than 200 million franks.

Stories of the origin of the hot dog story. But the naming of the savory is generally attributed to Tad Dorgan, a New York newspaper cartoonist who saw franks being served for the first time in the early 1900's at the Polo Grounds. Dorgan also is responsible for "dumb Dora," "the cat's pajamas," and other nifties.

As for summer, weathermen are not prepared to say that the spring-that-never-was portends a cold summer. Since 1960 there have been indications that the North American climate is cooling slightly. It might be well to keep earmuffs handy. In 1816, snow fell in New England and parts of New York in June, July, and August.

NEW YORK (AP) — One of the great American myths is "the typical New Yorker."

By tradition, the typical New Yorker is a sophisticated fellow who hobnobs with celebrities, dwells in a penthouse, reads all the latest best sellers, eats only at the fanciest restaurants, spends his evenings at night clubs, gets daily inside tips on what to buy in Wall Street, and knows whom to call at City Hall if he wants to get a traffic ticket fixed.

He's a "guy in the know," and compared to him anybody who dwells west of the Hudson River is a hinterland hayseed.

Ah, me, if life were only like that!

After 30 years of dwelling in O. Henry's fabled Baghdad on the Subway, I've decided that when it comes to "the typical New Yorker" of romantic legend, there probably ain't no such animal.

The "typical New Yorker," if you do happen to meet one, usually turns out to be an out-of-towner here for a lark on a Texas-sized expense account.

"I don't see how you stand the pace here," he says, leaving for home after a week or two spent trying to paint the big city a vivid crimson. "It would get me down."

Such remarks make a real New Yorker want to slit the out-of-towner's throat quietly. For the real New Yorker, like most of his brethren across the country, has to make do on a pretty tight budget. He doesn't see as much of the high-living side of the city in a year as a fast-buck visitor sees in a few nights.

There has been a steady exodus of middle-class white people from the city for several decades. Now the middle-class Negroes and Puerto Ricans are doing the same thing. As soon as they can afford to, they also are moving out to the suburbs in Westchester County and Long Island.

It isn't the mass of natives who keep the $20-a-meal glitter spots and the big expensive Broadway musicals running. New York is a work city, rather than "Fun City," to them.

Your real New Yorker is a guy who labors at an anonymous skyscraper desk and selects his lunch from a drug counter menu.

Your real New Yorker is a Wall Street stenographer who pays more than she can afford for a tiny dark walkup apartment in a Greenwich Village building that would probably be condemned in Vermont as an eyesore.

But they all share that same big dream: to earn enough so they can move away to somewhere cleaner and less noisy and less expensive.

Then they can come back occasionally as tourists and enjoy the big city in the way that only the out-of-towner can, pockets loaded with butter-and-egg money burning to be spent.

VIETNAM: CHINA'S WAR OF ATTRITION

A general has sobering words for Americans.

The general is not William C. Westmoreland, who, in an action unprecedented for a field commander in a time of war, came home from Vietnam to address a joint session of Congress. He is Brig. Gen. Samuel B. Griffith (USMC, Ret.)

Like Westmoreland, however, Griffith foresees no early end to the righting in Vietnam. Holder of a Ph. D. from Oxford in Chinese history as well as the Distinguished Service Cross, Griffith, now a research associate at the Hoover Institution on War, Revolution and Peace, believes the war will go on as long as Communist China wants it to go on.

In a recently published book, "The Chinese People's Liberation Army," he writes that Peking "will exert every pressure and take every measure short of direct intervention on the ground to prolong the figthing in South Vietnam and to prevent negotiation of a settlement."

China's regional foreign policy goals have not changed since the Korean War, says Griffith. They are the elimination of American influence and presence from the Asia rimlands and the eventual breaking out of what she sees as an encirclement of her by hostile and menacing American power.

For some time to come, however, she will not be able to muster the economic, political, means to enable her to accomplish these objectives.

Thus an indefinite protration of hostilities in Vietnam is altogether favorable to China's interests - "for a long war will sap American energies, focus American attention on this area to the exclusion of others, drain American strength, impair American morale, damage American prestige, undermine American alliances and so concretely alter 'the balance of forces' to China's benefit."

It has often been said that we must learn to live with an aggressive, militant China.

This is true, agrees Griffith. "But it is equally true that China must learn to live with us and with the world community. At the present time she shows slight indication of wishing to do either."

IMPORTANCE OF RELIGION DECLINES IN AMERICA

When we say "one nation under God" we take it for granted that Americans are a religious people. But are they? Just how important is religion in the U. S., and to how many Americans?

A Catholic Digest survey was designed to find out. George Gallup's public - opinion interviewers asked American adults, "How important would you say religion is in your own life -- very important, fairly important, or not very important?" This same question was asked in 1952; the current poll seeks to compare the change in attitudes over this 14-year period.

In a representative cross section of people from every region, religion, and walk of life 75% said religion was very important to them in 1952. Today, the percentage is down to 70%. Fourteen years ago 20% and religion was fairly important; 22% think so today. The number who regard religion as not very important is also up 2% - from 5% to 7&leoer to 7%.

The Congregationalists are the only ones stating that religion is more important is also up 2% - from 5% to 7%.

The Congregationalists are the only ones stating that religion is more important in 1966 than in 1952 -- from 57% to 62%. In 1952, 47% of the Jews thought religion very important; in1966, only 30% do. Religion is very important; in 1966, only 30% do. Religion is very important to 76% of Roman Catholics; it was 83% 14 years ago. All Protestant denominations are down but 2% - from 76% to 74%.

Among the Protestants, religion is very important to 82% of the Baptists; it was 84% in 1952. The greatest decline is the Methodists, 65% of whom say religion is very important compared to 74% 14 years ago. Sixty-two percent of Episcopalians think religion is very important today; 67% thought so in 1952. Lutherans are down 4% (from 70% to 66%) Presbyterians down 1% (from 72% to 71%).

AMERICANA

Students of history, railroad buffs, teachers, writers and others will find the eleventh edition of the "Railroad Film Directory", released recently by the Association of American Railroads to be of extraordinary interest. The Director is a guide to more than 345 films and slide-films owned by or relating to the American railroads.

There are films for child and adult entertainment, films on safety, films on freight handling -- one is even based on the ever-popular children's classic about "The Little Engine That Could."

These films are far more than a dry documentary of an industry. One is entitled "The Great Train Robbery", the famous pioneer film production by Edison in 1903. Others have to do with the Civil War period, the opening of the West, Indian ceremonials, inventions in America's growth, the loggin railroads of the West, iron ore from Labrador, tomorrow' railroading, etc., through an almost endless list.

The "Railroad Film Directory" is in effect a directory of American folklore. This is logical, since the rails have been and are the backbone of the American transportation system, and during most of the life of the nation have been closely associated with the important events that have shaped American history. The story of the railroads is the story of the United States.

We have said it once, now we repeat it.

If our lawmakers have the power to declare war (they do) then it's crystal clear to all, they also have the power to prevent undeclared war at anytime. This being the case, then the full responsibility for this destructive war in the far east rests on their shoulders. Said war being sparked by a clash of so called religeon 10,000 miles from home.

H. L. Hunt Says

HONOR GUARD FOR FREEDOM

Adoption of a constitutional amendment to reform the Electoral College by establishing the Congressional District Plan of choosing presidential electors would have the important effect of doing away with the "straw man" status that such electors now occupy. They would be men and women of prestige in their districts, known to the voters and influential with them.

Their high caliber would make them useful in many capacities during the presidential campaign. But their value to the nation would not end when they cast their votes, each as the representative of the people of his district, for President and Vice President. The formation of 538 electors and 538 runners-up, probably of equal stature with the winners, into a Former Nominees of Presidential Elector Committee would establish an honor guard for liberty.

Their study of urgent government problems and recommendations for their solution could be a vital force for preservation of the Republic. They would form a body of proven competence upon which the President could call for counsel. There is no question that the Former Nominees of Presidential Elector Committee would have vastly more influence than committees so frequently organized to pursue one side of a given subject of national concern.

The contemplation of this potentially great committee is fairly dependent upon an amendment to the U. S. Constitution under which each congressional district would choose one presidential elector and each state in an election at large would choose two electors. Resolutions proposing such an amendment are now before Congress. Congressional approval would be in the public interest. HLH

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- George Brown, former teamster, now foreign secretary for her majesty the queen of England, was entertained by President Johnson at luncheon last week, and complained audibly that he was the only dignitary present who wore brown shoes.

Sitting beside Vice President Humphrey, once elected as a Democratic farmer labor representative from Minnesota, he engaged in some quick repartee with HHH about the danger of upstaging their respective bosses, the prime minister and the President.

"When I returned from the continent with my prime minister," said Brown, "there was a big crowd waiting for us at the airport. I looked out at the crowd, saw my wife and my little granddaughter. The photographers, of course, were there to greet them. But when my granddaughter came running across the airport and threw her arms around my neck the cameramen all deserted the PM and ran over to take me.

"This is no way for a foreign minister to act," Brown told Humphrey. "You don't get anywhere upstaging the prime minister."

Brown proceeded to tell how when vice president Humphrey was in London he visited No. 10 Downing Street, Chequers and Windsor Palace.

"Then I gave a little luncheon for him and told him I wanted him to meet my granddaughter. We went to my home but my granddaughter wasn't there. However, we did find my little dog. When the photographers came up I admonished Hubert, 'don't grab him by the ears.'"

Next day, Vice President Humphrey recalls, the British newspapers came out with a photograph of the vice president petting his dog, captioned, "Foreign Secretary advises Humphrey not to pull British Dog's ears."

WHIPPED IN ABSENTIA

Brown remarked that the British cabinet was "giving me the devil" since his speech at the United Nations admonishing Israel.

"Now that I'm away from my colleagues in the cabinet they're already giving me a whipping."

The foreign secretary sat beside congressman William Bates of Massachusetts who, when the conversation turned to No. 10 Downing Street, asked Brown, "do you know who Downing was?"

"Yes," said Brown. "An American. When you see my brother," he added, referring to the younger Brown who is a distinguished professor of history, "please tell him that this old Teamster knows some history too."

Vice President Humphrey told Brown that he had noted a portrait of William Pitt hanging in No. 10 Downing and was rather concerned to see it had been painted by an artist named Romney.

"I take exception to that kind of partisanship," said the vice president. "However, I was glad to see that the portrait of James Fox, the parliamentarian who took up for the American colonies, was hung in a place of honor."

BUILT TO LAST

Speaking of Americans, Brown mentioned the fact that he had been born in a London flat built by an American named Samuel Peabody, who at that time was considered a great benefactor because he had tried to remedy the housing shortage.

"That house is now 100 years old and it still stands. I was 16 before I ever saw a water tap," said Brown. "What toilet facilities we had were communal. If you see my mother, don't tell her I complained about my birthplace, but it was a very dull, dingy abode, not given to much inspiration.

"I told the prime minister," continued Brown, "that if I'm ever knighted I'll probably be given the title 'Lord Peabody of the building.'"

Brown told how his brother, seven years younger, had run for parliament and has proposed a new tax just three days before election.

"'I need to have words with you,' I told my brother. 'You might be a fine professor but you're not a sound politician. You're going to get whipped. You don't propose a tax increase just before election.' And I described this in Teamster Irish terms. My brother was not pleased.

"Whereupon he won a smashing victory. The next day he phoned me and said, 'perhaps if you can spare the time you'd like to see me again on the subject of politics.'"

A BOMBS AND DICE

The gambling fraternity and citizens of Las Vegas, Nevada, will be glad to know that the atomic energy commission is not planning to disrupt the sporting atmosphere of their city with close - up nuclear blasts. AEC chairman Glenn Seaborg told the House Appropriations Committee the other day that "higher yield" nuclear devices would not be tested at the present site in Nevada, because Las Vegas "is just too close."

"It would shake up the dice?" suggested Rep. Thomas G. Morris, D-N.M.

"Seismic effects, of course," said Seaborg, adding with a grin: "As congressman Morris says, it will shake up the dice on the table and destroy the odds. More serious than that, it shakes the buildings and so forth and could lead to unsafe conditions. We are looking at test sites in alternative places."

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

INSIDE REUTHER'S STRATEGY

Story Behind the Coming War on the Auto-Labor Front.

DETROIT - There are men here - and they do not count themselves greybeards - who recall when union brother fought union brother with metal chains and iron bars and in last resort hammered away with their fists. They moved on each other in long auto caravans and disciplined platoon-sized gangs.

They fought for jurisdiction over skilled jobs in the big factories here and up the line in city after city. It may come to this soon enough.

This is the story to watch as Walter Reuther and the automobile company executives on or about July 10, begin their trienniel ritual when they run the gamut and the gauntlet before the TV cameras and begin formal renogotiations of contracts which expire Sept. 6.

There will be a long siege and splashing headlines and much shuttling between this car city and the national capital. Eloquently Reuther will denounce the corporate leaders in the class struggle vituperation that everyone expects. That's tradition. He will demand much. That's tradition.

But the key phrase in the key issue in all the jousting with the corporate men who have developed a new eloquence of their own will be something new to the public. Mark it well. It's "contracting out."

Before the final struggle is over late this year, Reuther and his colleagues will make that phrase as famous a household word as their "guaranteed annual wage."

"Contracting out" merely is the corporate practice of calling in outside contractors to supply skilled labor for some task such as carpentering, electrical work, honing up some machines or building some new structures. The outsiders are union men. But they don't belong to Reuther's United Auto Workers. They are members of the AFL-CIO building and construction trades unions whose leaders Reuther has been berating for years.

Now, says Reuther, who is co-chairman of the UAW's Skilled Trades Dept. (some 200,000 strong), this must stop if there are auto union men available and willing to do the work inside the plant. This involves tens of thousands of jobs and hundreds of millions of dollars.

The companies have said, in effect, that contracting out really is no business of the auto union. It's a management right, the executives argue.

But the federal courts have ruled that the companies must bargain with the auto union over such practices - call it contracting out or sub-contracting. This decision came down last February in a case involving General Motors' effort to change operations at its South Gate, Calif., plant. A shift in operations affected six jobs. The men were given other work. But the union sued, saying that the company had to negotiate with it anyway merely on principle - even if no one was laid off at the moment. And the union won.

So Reuther and his colleagues will go into negotiations soon and demand that before there is contracting out, the work must be offered to UAW men who are on layoff, on shorter hours or have not been offered the work.

There are other demands involving sub-contracting. But essentially the union wants control of the work and the jobs. The new technology and "computerology," says the auto union, is wiping out jobs and what is left should go to the auto union members.

And the UAW wants a joint labor-management committee to decide such issues. Furthermore, the union demands that future contracts shall give the UAW skilled tradesmen the "right to strike" when necessary to enforce their position on contracting out.

Management is not about to dash out to buy pens for the signing of such a pact. The companies know they will have to give skilled workers a bigger raise than the other hourly rated employes. This will make it more costly to repair and extend or maintain plants. And it will be more and more desirable to put in new automation and computer operations - as well as to contract out.

Eventually there will be a showdown. The companies will insist on their rights to bring in contractors. The auto union skilled workers are of such a mood they will picket.

The outside construction trades unionists, who have the Teamsters with them, aren't often deterred by "enemy" picket lines. It will be a noisy show.

But it is coming. Just look behind the rhetoric.

Mrs. Michael Allen Kelley

Miss Phyllis McLaurin Weds Michael Allen Kelly

KENNETT -- The First Baptist church was the setting for the wedding of Miss Phyllis Adelina McLaurin to Michael Allen Kelley. The candlelight service was performed at 3:30 p.m. June 11.

Officiating at the double ring ceremony was Dr. W. E. Martin, pastor of the church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Philip L. McLaurin, and parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. D. Paul Kelley. He is the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. H. Burley Kelley.

The bride is the granddaughter of Mrs. John R. Chaney and Mrs. P. L. McLaurin, Sr., and the niece of Owen J. Taul and Miss Appelone Taul, all of Canalou.

Selections of nuptial music was presented by Mrs. Ruth Sexton, organist, as guests were ushered to their seats by Calvin Gamel, Jr., of New Madrid, the bride's brother-in-law, and David McLaurin, the bride's brother. Mrs. Sexton accompanied Mrs. Bill Rogers as she sang "Through the Years."

The wedding vows were pledged in front of the altar, which was surrounded by an arch of glowing tapers, entwined with smilax, ferns and large yellow pom-pom mums. Baskets of ferns were on each side of the lighted candle arch and candle trees. During the ceremony the couple knelt on a white satin prayer bench while Mrs. Rogers sang, "The Lord's Prayer."

Nuptial music was played as Miss Diana Billings, daughter of Judge and Mrs. William H. Billings, and Miss Judy Fagan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Fagan, lighted the candle trees and arch.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of antique white peau de soie of empire design. Her detachable wedding train was a long cape design with a large box pleat in the center of the back. The entire train was covered with one thousand pearls, individually hand-sewn by the bride, over antique white peau de soie.

The bridal veil of misty English illusion, was of finger tip length with the crown covered with tiny pearls and sequins.

The bride carried a large bouquet of white daisies with white and pale yellow picot-edged ribbon streamers covered with lily of the valley. In the center was the bride's corsage of three white orchids. The entire bridal bouquet was attached to her Bible, which was covered in white satin. Her only jewelry was a single strand of pearls.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Calvin Gamel, Jr., of New Madrid, sister of the bride. Bridesmaids were Miss Janis Brownning and Miss Carolyn Via of Senath. They wore indentical gowns of daffodil yellow crepe with pleated draped backs. Their headpieces were of the same material. Each bridesmaid carried a bouquet of white and yellow daisies.

The junior bridesmaids were Miss Cynthia Welman, dauchter of Mr. and Mrs. William Welman, Miss Michelle Collier, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Collier, and Misses Linda and Sarah Jo Tate, daughters of Dr. and Mrs. Milton Tate.

They wore identical gowns of yellow dotted Swiss with a complete overgown of white embroidered eyelet. Yellow velvet ribbon around the waist fell into long streamers down the back of the dresses. Each young girl carried a bouquet of yellow and white daisies and wore headpieces to match their yellow and white gowns.

Flower girl was Miss Deborah Tate. She was attired in a solid yellow silk organza fully-cut dress. Her headpiece was of circular veiling, with yellow ribbon at the top and tiny white daisies scattered over the veiling. She wore a corsage of yellow and white daisies and carried a white lace basket. It was filled with flower petals, which she scattered the full length of the white carpet preceding the entrace of the bride.

William Kelley of Chicago, Ill., served his brother as best man. John Walpole of Memphis and David McLaurin were groomsmen. Junior groomsmen were Jimmy Collier, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Collier, Kevin Gamble, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Gamble, Joe McDaniel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack McDaniel, and Thomas McGhee, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas McGhee. All men were attired in black tuxedos and wore boutonniers of white carnations.

The bride's mother chose for the wedding a solid blue lace dress with matching accessories and a corsage of white cymbidium orchids. Mrs. Kelley, mother of the groom, wore a solid pink ensemble with matching accessories and a white cymbidium corsage.

Grandmothers of the couple, Mrs. H. Burley Kelley and Mrs. John R. Chaney of Canalou, wore matching white carnation corsages to complement their dresses.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held at the Country Club formal dining room.

The table was covered with a white linen cloth and a bouquet of white daisies with streamers of "Mike and Phyllis" printed on them, flowing across the table. The guest book was presided at by Miss Linda Stillman.

Mrs. Diana Billings and Miss Judy Fagan served guests at the reception. The table was completely covered to the floor with a white satin cloth overskirted with white netting draped in the center and at each end with white satin ribbon. In the center of the table was placed the four tiered traditional wedding cake. Silver candelabra flanked the wedding cake. On each end of the serving table fruit punch was poured from large silver punch bowls. Frozen yellow and white daisies floated inside the punch.

Following the reception a wedding dinner was held at the home of the bride's parents. Mr. and Mrs. McLaurin held the dinner for the couple and relatives. It was served buffet style for 30 guests, before the young couple left for their honeymoon.

The groom will spend three months at Dubuque, Iowa, as part of his training in mechanical engineering, before returning to the University of Cincinnati, in Ohio. Mr. and Mrs. Kelley will both continue their schooling at the University.

Out of town guests present at the wedding were Lou Martin, Nick Yavelak, and Mike Lucas, Martin's Ferry, Ohio, Mrs. John Chaney, Owen J. Taul, Miss Appelone Taul, Mr. and Mrs. Jewell Chaney and Miss Mary Chaney, Canalou, Mr. and Mrs. Dalton Via, Miss Adelyne Via, Miss Carolyn Via, Mrs. Preshia Via, and Mr. and Mrs. Rudie Slaughter, Senath, Mo., Mr. and Mrs. Allen Blankenship, and Miss Virginia Williams, Piggott, Ark., Mr. and Mrs. John Walpole, Memphis, Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Gamel, New Madrid, Mr. and Mrs. Rudie W. Slaughter, Jr., Champaign, Ill., Victor Slaughter, Liberty, Mo. and Dr. and Mrs. Dan Neely, Champaign, Ill.

Cepeda, Brock Named All-Star Starters

ST. LOUIS -- First Baseman Orlando Cepeda and Left Fielder Lou Brock of the Cardinals were picked to start for the National League All-Star team in the game at Anaheim, Calif., on July 11 as the vote of players, managers and coaches was revealed Wednesday.

But Catcher Tim McCarver, enjoying his best season, finished a distant second to veteran Joe Torre of the Atlanta Braves.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Willia Mays will be among the missing when the National League All-Stars take the field to oppose the American League July 11 at Anaheim, because the players, managers and coaches failed to name him to the starting line-up.

Mays, a super performer who had been a starter for 13 straight years since he came out of the Army in 1954, undoubtedly will be on the team. Manager Walt Alston of the Los Angeles Dodgers will pick the pitchers and the rest of the 25-man squad.

The 36-year-old outfielder who is second to Babe Ruth in career home runs finished fourth among the outfielders in the voting. Under a change in the rules, effected last year by Commissioner William Eckert, the first three outfielders are the starters, regardless of their positions.

Roberto Clemente of Pittsburgh polled 248 votes, Hank Aaron of the Atlanta Braves got 216 and Lou Brock of the St. Louis Cardinals drew 116. Mays' total was 77. Both Clemente and Aaron normally are right fielders and Brock is a left fielder so Alston probably will shift Aaron to center

Gene Alley, Pittsburgh shortstop, drew the most votes with 250, tops in both leagues. A total of 285 votes were cast but Pittsburgh had 27. As players were not permitted to vote for their own teammates, Alley thus received 250 of a possible 258.

Pittsburgh put three men on the starting eight, pitchers excluded. Bill Mazeroski, Alley's double play partner at second base, received 218 votes and was an easy winner along with Alley and Clemente.

Orlando Cepeda, the St. Louis Cardinals first baseman who is having a fine year, outlistanced the opposition with 219 votes, joining outfielder Brock as Card representatives.

Joe Torre, the Atlanta catcher who has been out with injuries, won by a comfortable margin with 187 votes to runnerup Tim McCarver of St. Louis with 62. That gave Atlanta double representation with Aaron and Torre.

The closest fight was for third base where Richie Allen of the Philadelphia Phillies was the winner with 148 votes over Tony Perez of Cincinnati who had 75.

Alston will announce his pitchers Friday and the rest of the squad July 6. There must be at least one from each club on the team. Starters, except pitchers, must play at least the first three innings. Pitchers can not go more than three, except in extra innings.

No less than 15 outfielders got votes. Following Mays' fourth-place total of 77, came Pete Rose of Cincinnati 66, Jimmy Wynn of Houston 55, Rusty Staub of Houston, 27, Billy Williams of Chicago 19, Curt Flood of St. Louis 14, Adolfo Phillips of Chicago 4, Tommy Davis of New York 3, Matty Alou of Pittsburgh 3, Willie Stargell of Pittsburgh 3, John Callison of Philadelphia 2 and Vada Pinson of Cincinnati 2.

Brock was the only left-handed batter in the starting line-up. He and Alley were the only newcomers who had never started. The three repeaters were Aaron, Clemente and Torre. Of the 1966 crops, first baseman Willie McCovey of San Francisco, second baseman Joe Morgan of Houston, third baseman Ron Santo of Chicago, shortstop Leo Cardenas of Cincinnati, who is injured, and Mays did not repeat.

THESE ARE the football stadium and the baseball stadium for which Jackson County residents gave better than 2-to-1 approval to $43 million in bonds Tuesday. The baseball stadium is designed to accommodate 45,500 fans and the football stadium, 75,000. The roof sections would ride on railroad tracks and could be moved into place over the gridiron or adjacent baseball diamond in foul weather.

Anybody For A Recount

Associated Press Sports Writer

Anybody for a recount?

Willie Mays left a couple hundred embarrassed All-Star electors in his wake Wednesday when, a few hours after the announcement that he had been left out of the National League's starting line-up for the first time since 1954, he hit two homers and two singles in San Francisco's 9-1 pounding of St. Louis.

The peerless Giant slugger finished fourth in the voting for outfielders, receiving 39 fewer votes than Lou Brock of St. Louis. Willie is virtually certain to be traded to the team by Manager Walt Alston of the Dodgers, but for the first time since 1954 he won't be a starter.

Willie confesses that "I'm not having what anyone would call a fantastic year," — anyone named Willie Mays, that is; he's hitting .293 with 13 homers and 37 RBI — but you couldn't prove that by the Cards.

In other National League action, Chicago won a doubleheader from Pittsburgh 4-2 and 3-1, Los Angeles overcame Cincinnati 7-5, Houston beat Atlanta 4-2 and Philadelphia edged New York 6-5.

Both of Mays' singles came in the third inning when the Giants scored six times, giving Ray Sadecki a commanding lead against his old teammates that he had no trouble holding.

The first homer was delivered in the sixth inning and the second — No. 555 of his career — came in the eighth. Both were off reliever Al Jackson.

The amazing Cubs made it nine victories in 10 outings with their pair of triumphs over the Pirates. Ferguson Jenkins won the opener, his 10th of the season, and Ray Culp allowed just three hits in the nightcap. Adolfo Phillips hit a three-run homer in the first game and ignited the go-ahead rally with a double in the second.

The Dodgers spotted the Reds five runs, then came back on homers by John Roseboro and Jim Lefebvre, a two-run double by Lou Johnson and three runs on Cincinnati errors. The last two broke a 5-5 tie as Ron Hunt and Willie Davis came in when Chico Ruiz bobbled a grounder by Al Ferrara.

Jimmy Wynn came in on a wild pitch by Phil Niekro with the bases loaded and two out in the ninth, spurring the Astros to their victory, which broke an eight-game losing streak. Jackie Brandt followed with a single for the clinching run. Dave Giusti held the Braves to five hits, striking out 10.

Rich Allen's three-run homer in the seventh followed by Bill White's solo blast won the game for the Phillies. Ken Boyer's two-run triple sparked a three-run first inning for the Mets.

"I wasn't thinking home run," admitted Eddie Stanky, manager of rampaging Chicago White Sox.

COACHES ALL-AMERICA GAME TV SCOUTING REPORT AND ROSTERS

EAST VS. WEST

ATLANTA STADIUM, ATLANTA, GEORGIA

SATURDAY, JULY 8

COACHES: EAST -- Tom Cahill, Army, head coach; Vince Dooley, Georgia; and Jerry Claiborne, V.I.P., assistant coaches

WEST -- Bob Devaney, Nebraska, head coach; Odus Mitchell, West Texas State; and John McKay, USC, assistant coaches

OFFENSE: EAST -- Without a doubt, the East squad has probably the greatest scoring power of any All-Star squad at this level in the history of the game. There are two outstanding quarterbacks, Steve Spurrier (11) of Florida and Bob Griese (12) of Purdue. For running backs, the East has Floyd Little (44) of Syracuse and Nick Eddy (47) of Notre Dame, who will be playing fullback in this game. Gene Washington (85) of Michigan State and Dave Dunaway (86) of Duke are excellent pass receivers. The East should be able to score with such outstanding offensive personnel.

WEST -- Although not as impressive as the East's squad, the West does have halfback Mel Farr (22) of UCLA, considered by many as the best running back in the country in 1966. And then there is fullback Ray McDonald (32) of Idaho, who many felt was the best fullback in college football last year. The quarterback assignment will go to either Jon Brittenum (15) of Arkansas or James Burris (16) of Houston. Halfback Rod Sherman (12) of USC is an excellent pass receiver. End Ben Hart (88) of Oklahoma was a superb pass receiver for the Sooners for three years.

SUMMARY -- On paper, the East holds a big edge in this department because it has a group of backs who can do everything so well. The East probably will pass more than the West unless the latter falls behind early in the game by a touchdown or two. It is hard to remember an All-Star team in recent years which has more offensive punch than this East squad.

We'll have a look at the defense and tradition tomorrow.

Bill to End Property Tax Passes

JEFFERSON CITY AP -- The Missouri House Wednesday sent to the governor a bill eliminating a 3-cent state tax on property. The savings would total about $2,600,000 a year for taxpayers but a vocal minority said it would only amount to about $.25 for the average taxpayer.

The opponents said the state could better use the money for improving schools and mental health programs. They called it just a political campaign gimmick for candidates to tell voters they had saved them taxes.

Sponsors replied the tax was first levied after the Civil War when the state had no such sources of revenue as the income tax, sales tax and others.

They said it would help give local governments a monopoly on the property tax as a source of revenue.

Actually it would not eliminate all state property taxes. There still will be a 3-cent state tax on property for the blind pension fund.

The vote sending the bill to the governor was 150-9.

Also sent to the governor was a bill to set up an executive mansion advisory commission composed of the widows of former governors. For the relatively honorary job they would receive $250 a month.

The House took up the bill out of order today because Mrs. Guy B. Park, widow of a former governor, was reported in a hospital.

The House asked for House-Senate conferences on the key insurance industry regulating bill and on the first omnibus appropriation bill that was passed by the Senate Tuesday.

The House also agreed to a conference on a bill creating a State Board of Health.

Passed and sent to the Senate was the second omnibus, or catchall, appropriation bill. It contains more than $5 million, including money to raise salaries of employes in rural state institutions and providing state aid to the college residence centers in Independence.

Also passed by the Senate and sent to the governor was a bill raising the revenue director, Tom David, from $15,000 to $19,000 a year, Comptroller and Budget Driector John C. Vaughn from $15,000 to $20,000 and Revenue Collector Tom Gilstrap from $10,000 to $12,000.

The Senate gave judges across the state a blanket $4,000 a year raise after accepting a House amendment that would make the raise not effective until Jan. 1, 1969.

Sen. Albert M. Spradling, D. Cape Girardeau, said "It seems the House doesn't want the judiciary to have a raise until the legislature and executives of the state get one."

A recently passed bill grants legislators a raise from $4,800 to $8,400, but isn't effective until the 1969 term begins.

Revenue Bonds Meet With Voter Approval

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Revenue bond and annexation issues met with voter approval in a number of Missouri communities Tuesday.

The biggest was for $1 million for sewer and water systems improvement in Maryville. The vote was 1,179 to 427, exceeding the legal four-sevenths requirement by 263. The proposal had been defeated by a more than 2-to-1 margin on Feb. 14.

In West Plains, the vote was 362 to 53 in favor of $200,000 in bonds for another water and sewer improvement program. Annexation of 250 acres also was approved 344 to 71.

Carl Junction voters approved a $315,000 bond issue to build water and sewer systems 355 to 87, and for annexation of 515 acres to the city 351 to 87.

Briar Brook Development Corp., a private agency formed by Jasper County businessmen, plans to build a $1 million country club and 550 houses on the tract.

In Holden, Mo., a former patrolman, Jack Pirch, defeated former Police Chief Jack Parker for city marshal. Pirch received 352 votes to 74 for Parker. Pirch led by almost the same margin in last week's primary.

The Holden city council instituted the city marshal's office instead of police chief as the result of a feud between Mayor B. A. Bonewitz and Parker, who was chief at the time.

An $840,000 general obligation bond issue was approved in North Kansas City by a 4-to-1 margin. The money will be used for highway right-of-way acquisition.

Voters of Dearborn in Platte County defeated a $55,000 general obligation bond issue but voting on a $117,000 revenue bond issue was so close the issue had not been determined late Tuesday night.

Larry N. Reeves, 56-year-old automobile mechanic, was elected sheriff of Platte County, defeating his Republican opponent, Douglas Seneker, 2,444 to 2,183.

Frozen whole peeled potatoes can go into that stew or around a roast and save you preparation time.

BEATING THE HEAT was Chuck Tinnon, who takes a plunge into 18 feet of water at the Wolf hole, east of Interstate 55 on highway 62 east of Miner. Two standing on the railroad bridge awaiting a plunge are unidentified.

Missourians Head Peace Officers

KANSAS CITY (AP) - Two husky Missouri peace officers now head two of the nation's major law enforcement organizations.

One is Sheriff Bill Hemphill of Barry County, who earlier this month was selected to head the National Sheriff's Association at its annual convention in Las Vegas.

The other is Trooper Wayne Oberhelman, Lee's Summit, with Troop A of the Missouri Highway Patrol, who last week was chosen as president of the National Peace Officers Association at El Paso, Tex.

They are not far apart in size. Sheriff Hemphill is 6 feet, 4 inches tall and weighs 215 pounds. Trooper Oberhelman is 6-2 and weighs 200.

Both moved into the top post of their organizations from the rank of vice president. Hemphill moved up through the ranks of seven vice presidential positions. Oberhelman served three years as a member of the board of directors and then one year as vice president.

Hemphill's county, in southern Missouri, covers only 790 square miles with a population of 18,921. It is believed to be one of the smallest to have its sheriff chosen to lead the organization of 23,000 members.

The 49-year-old officer formerly was in the feed wholesale and retail business at Purdy. He sold out in the spring of 1952, ran for sheriff on the Republican ticket and has held the office ever since.

He is especially proud of the Barry County Sheriff's Posse of 50 uniformed horsemen. Its 20-man drill team won first place last year in the Pageant of the Rockies rodeo at Colorado Springs.

"These officers are a big help in emergencies," Sheriff Hemphill said. "They help with traffic in this heavily traveled tourist area. They help search for lost persons; rescue work in the case of boating accidents and to set up road blocks. Two of our possemen have planes which are a big help."

Trooper Oberhelman has been with the highway patrol as long as Hemphill has been a sheriff - 15 years. The 42-year-old head of the 9,500 member organization, has two hobbies.

One is markmanship, a field which takes in his whole family, his wife, Bettie; a daughter, Wendy, 18, and a son, Gary, 15. At pistol matches in the El Paso convention, Gary won first place in a special children's match. Mrs. Oberhelman won fourth in the women's match and Wendy placed seventh. Trooper Oberhelman finished fifth in a .22 caliber match.

Oberhelman recently won the Kansas rapid-fire revolver award at Topeka.

His other hobby is flying. He has a commercial pilot's license. Oberhelman was born on a farm north of Manhattan.

Poll Tests Knowledge about Government

COLUMBIA, Mo., - At a meeting of the Mid-American Assembly in Iowa City, legislators and informed citizens from four states including Missouri discussed the future of state legislatures.

A recurring point in the conversations was that the public simply was not informed about what happens in state government. The mass media was accused of focusing heavily on national and international events, to the virtual exclusion of news from the state capital. News media representatives, however, countered that they provided adequate coverage of state politics but that the general public is seldom much interested in it.

Because of this controversy, the Public Opinion Survey Unit of the University of Missouri decided to analyze its data to see how media exposure is related to knowledge about state affairs. POSU had asked its statewide sample of nearly 1,000 adult Missourians a series of questions about their media consumption and about state politics. The interviews occurred in June 1966, shortly after a Missouri legislative session where such a vital matter as the budget was at issue. The 1965 reapportionment decisions were also being rehashed in capitol cloakrooms. Most mass media in the state had provided daily or weekly coverage of these events in Jefferson City, including the activities of both the governor and the state legislature.

The two simplest questions POSU asked about Missouri state politics were these: (1) "On the subject of state politics, have you ever heard of Warren Hearnes? Can you identify him; that is, what does he do?" and (2) "Do you know if the Missouri state legislature did or did not hold a session this year?"

On the first question, 76 per cent of the respondents correctly identified Hearnes as the present governor of Missouri. Of the remaining 24 per cent, half had heard of that name but couldn't remember who he was, and the remainder hadn't heard of him.

On the second question, less than half of the adult Missourians (45 per cent) correctly knew that the legislature had met in 1966. The remaining 55 per cent didn't know whether or not it had met, or else, thought it hadn't met in 1966.

Knowledge about state affairs was related to media exposure, but it was related in peculiar ways. As Table 1 indicates, there is a very strong association between the number of newspapers an individual regularly reads, and his ability to answer correctly the two questions about state affairs. Extensive newspaper reading is accompanied by greater knowledge about state politics. A similar relationship was found between magazine reading and knowledge.

TABLE 1

	No. Newspapers Read Regularly
	0	1	2	3
Identified Hearnes as Mo. Governor	42%	74%	83%	90%
Couldn't identify Hearnes	58	26	17	10
Knew Mo. legislature met in 1966	20%	38%	54%	61%
Didn't know whether legislature met	80	62	46	39

When the medium changes from something that must be read to something that can be listened to or watched, much different patterns appear. With the exception of individuals who are never exposed to any mass media including radio, there is no consistent relationship between knowledge about state politics and the number of hours one listens to the radio. With television, however, there is. Table 2 points out that those who never watch television shows of any kind (the cultural isolates described above) and those who watch it most frequently (30 hours or more a week) were least able to answer the questions about state politics. For the latter, apparently, television has little public affairs informational impact. Those most knowledgeable about state politics are those who limit their television watching and supplement it with newspaper reading.

TABLE 2

	Hours Watching Television per Week
	None	30 or Less	Over 30
Identified Hearnes as Mo. Governor	65%	78%	61%
Couldn't identify Hearnes	35	22	39
Knew Mo. legislature met in 1966	38%	47%	38%
Didn't know whether legislature met	62	53	62

None of these figures prove that the mass media constitute the primary sources for information about state politics.

WORKING IN THE agricultural conservation practices division of the Stoddard county ASCS are, from left, Mrs. Louise Stevens, price support and loans; Mrs. June Clay, assistant clerk; Mrs. Vera Almond, administrative, and Mabel Duff, head clerk.

Stoddard's ASCS Operation Big

By Warren Sokolis

BLOOMFIELD - Stoddard county, with about 4,000 farms, is one of the largest counties in the state in area, total cropland, total productivity and number of individual farms.

Because of the important role agriculture plays in the county's economy, Stoddard's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service office "is one of the largest in the state for volume of work handled," George E. Pulliam, ASCS office manager, noted.

The agency has been a part of the county for more than 30 years and has had office locations at Dexter and Bloomfield. It is now located in a new building on highway 25 in Bloomfield and shares the building with two other United States department of agriculture agencies, the Soil Conservation Service and Farmers Home Administration.

"The function of the agency is to administrer federal farm programs to farmers of the county. Programs being administered now are available to farmers under the food and agriculture act of 1965," Pulliam explained.

"These programs are administered on a voluntary basis and are designed to maintain stability in production and price of our major crops, cotton, feed grain and wheat.

"Present law provides for price support payments to participating farmers on that part of their production used domestically, bringing total farm income more in line with that of other industry," he continued.

"Annual cotton, feed grain and wheat payments total approximately $5 million under the present voluntary program."

Pulliam pointed out that since its beginning ASCS has promoted soil conservation practices, for which federal cost-sharing is available.

"Commodity loans through Commodity Credit Corporation are available on all major stored crops produced in the county, which is a useful source of interim financing or short term credit.

"Loans in excess of $2 million were processed following 1965 crops," Pulliam said.

"The combined programs administered by the local ASCS office add greatly to the overall economy of the county. The new office facility permits carrying out the objectives of the agency more efficiently."

If You Were the Judge

Bloodhound's Talented Sniff O.K. as Evidence

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Sam was sitting innocently on his front porch when a bloodhound, followed by several investigating policemen, bounded onto his porch. And, as Sam and the dog stared at each other, eyeball to eyeball, the police found some of the loot from a recent burglary in Sam's garage. The result? Sam was charged with pulling off the job.

In court, Sam was convicted bang-bang-bang. But, it was the "testimony" of the bloodhound that clinched the conviction. It seemed that once on the trail, the dog led the police directly to Sam.

"You can't take the word of that dog over mine," Sam argued on appeal. "I'm innocent! The dog's a four-legged liar."

"Not that dog," answered the district attorney. "He's a true thoroughbred with the ability of his breed to sniff out anyone. He's been on more right tracks than a train."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you affirm Sam's conviction on the "testimony" of a dog?

This is how the judge ruled: Yes! He held that when a bloodhound is of pure blood and of stock characterized by an acuteness of scent and power of discrimination, the results of his sniffing is admissible in court as evidence.

(Based upon a 1965 North Carolina Supreme Court Decision.)

TODAY'S LEGAL POINTER:

If you're given a check which you believe may "bounce" if you wait the time required for it to clear after you deposit it, you can play it safe by having the check certified at the bank of the person who gave it to you. Once certified, his bank, in effect, says that the check will be good when your bank presents it for collection.

Ann Landers

Speed Can Produce Life Of Regret

Dear Ann Landers: Last weekend five teen-agers from our town were killed in an automobile accident. Four of these kids were friends of mine. One was an only child, and two were brothers.

The driver was going at a very high rate of speed and he lost control of the wheel. The car went through 25 guardrail posts and down a 40-foot enbankment. Every kid in the automobile had a broken neck. The funerals were like nightmares. You can't imagine the grief of the parents and grandparents and brothers and sisters of those kids who were killed. Classmates and friends felt AWFUL, but in a few weeks we will get over the sadness and think about something else. For the families of the kids who died, the pain will go on for a long, long time - maybe forever.

I just hope you will urge all teen-agers everywhere to ask themselves, "Could this terrible things have happened to me?" I admit I've been guilty of speeding and I have been in cars when the driver was going too fast. I was just lucker than the kids in the death car.

Pleast print my letter. If it will wake up just one teen-ager and make him realize that a few minutes of excitement could end in five funerals, I will feel it was worth the effort it took to write to you. -- A YOUNG MOURNER

Dear Young Mourner: I have received dozens of letters about this same accident. Yours said it best.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband bought me a parrot for Christmas. The bird is not only dirty as a pig but he makes an awful lot of noise. I can put up with the dirt and the noise all right, but lately that crazy bird has started to imitate the doorbell and I am half nuts running to the door and finding nobody there. Whenever this happens the parrot gives out a dirty laugh, as if he knows he put over a fast one.

Pleast tell me how to outwit this miserable but clever bird. -- NEW ORLEANS MOANER.

Dear Moaner: Replace the doorbell with a heavy knocker. They are not only decorative but practical. The bird may be clever but he'll have one heck of a time imitating THAT.

Dear Ann Landers: I am in love with a wonderful girl and I want to marry her. She is 17 and just finished high school. She wants to go to college and has won a scholarship which means she will surely go. The girl insists she loves me but she doesn't want to accept an engagement ring before she goes away. I am beginning to think she wants to run around when she gets to college. It seems to me that an engaged girl would pay more attention to her studies, which is what she is supposed to be in college for.

We have gone steady for two years and so far as I know she has been faithful. Please advise her to accept my ring so she will not be tempted to fool around. Thank you. --- MR. X.

Dear Mr. X: Why are you so eager to tie her up? Afraid she might meet someone else who is more appealing?

College means more than studying. It means meeting people and making comparisons and learning how the world works. A 17-year-old girl who would accept an engagement ring before she goes off to college has to have rocks in her head.

If you have trouble getting along with your parents. . if you can't get them to let you live your own life, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Bugged By Parents? How to Get More Freedom." Send 50¢ in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Judge Rescues Plans for Mass — Wedding in Park

NEW YORK (AP) — The city has lined up nine couples for an outdoor wed-in, a judge has promised to officiate, and a choir of 40 youngsters is practicing special music written for the occasion.

"They've lost their municipal minds," sighed Chief City Clerk Herman Katz in his office Wednesday.

Katz, who frequently presides over the standard one-couple-at-a-time ceremony, had turned down Parks Commissioner August Heckscher's request that he officiate at the wed-in Saturday.

But Criminal Court Judge Amos Basel agreed to take the job late Wednesday.

"I cleared this first with the judicial administration and they told me to go ahead," he said. "I assured them that it was not going to be a spectacle."

The wed-in— sort of a Saturday filip for Fun City's summer festival— was conceived by Mayor John V. Lindsay.

Two weeks ago they announced that the first 50 couples writing CUPID, care of the department, would assemble on the greensward of Brooklyn's Prospect Park and say, "I do."

Heckscher explained that at the turn of the century it was very big in Brooklyn to get married in the park, and this was an attempt to revive the old custom.

The response was better than anyone anticipated.

She died in Chicago Tuesday night. A brother, Bernard Crain, lives in Sikeston.

Students invariable have trouble arranging their schedules to include new courses. While working at a registration desk at midyear I was approached by a very attractive young coed. When I informed her that the section for which she wanted to register was closed, she studied her schedule, gave a sign of resignation and replied matter-of-factly, "Well, it's either Marriage and the Family, or Metallurgy." - Kelly Whetten

Propose P.T. Boat Museum for Memphis

MEMPHIS - Remember the P.T. boats, those sleek, fast-moving craft that struck terror into the hearts of the Japanese during World War II?

It was a P.T. boat that carried Gen. Douglas MacArthur to safety when he was ordered to leave the Philippines. And President John F. Kennedy was skipper of P. T. 109 when it was sunk near Bird Island in the Pacific.

Today, the navy doesn't have a single P.T. boat left in the fleet. There isn't even one of the small boats in the navy's museum in the Washington Navy Yard.

J. M. Newberry, a former crewman aboard a P.T. boat who now lives in Memphis, is spearheading a reunion of P.T. personnel in September. At the reunion, Newberry proposes to present plans for a P.T. boat museum to be built in Memphis.

The reunion of P. T. boat crew members is scheduled for Sept. 2-3 at the Sheraton-Peabody Hotel in Memphis.

A 20-ton section representing the cockpit system of a P. T. boat and which simulates a craft under way has been located and will be brought to Memphis for the reunion.

Rear Admiral E. M. Eller, director of Naval history, has provided Newberry with a set of blueprints for construction of a P.T. boat and the Memphian hopes to establish the museum around the facsimile. He estimates cust of the boat at $40,000.

"I think the museum is an excellent project that can have great value to veterans, the nation and citizens of tomorrow," Admiral Eller said.

The registration address for former P.T. crewmen interested in attending the Sept. 2-3 reunion is P. O. Box 202, Memphis, Tenn. 38101.

an amendment to make packing plants pay for the inspections.

At that point majority leader Richard J. Rabbitt, D-St. Louis, adjourned the House for the night.

Earlier, Rabbitt charged the minority Republicans with causing the near-riotous behavior of the house.

The minority leader, Rep. R. J. (Bus) King, R-Clayton, said he resented the criticism from Rabbitt and thought he ought to apologize.

"Don't hold your breath," Rabbit replied.

Just before the quarrel between the leaders two Democrats, Reps. Thomas Ryan of Kansas City and Francis Saly of St. Louis, gaily trooped around the chamber spraying the place with deodorizer.

Some Democrats expressed anger at the action of the two men.

Miss Mansfield had been appearing at the Gus Stevens Restaurant and Supper Club in Biloxi. Her engagement began June 23 and was scheduled to end July 4. On week nights, she performed at a 9 p.m. dinner show and at the 11 p.m. supper show.

Brody had been Miss Mansfield's companion and lawyer. His wife had accused him in a divorce action recently of committing adultery with Miss Mansfield, who was separated from her third husband, Matt Cimber, a stage director. Miss Mansfield and Cimber had a child, Antonio, 1.

Miss Mansfield was born April 1933, in Bryn Mawr, Pa., and grew up in Phillipsburg, N.J. Her real name was Vera Jayne Palmer. Later she moved to Texas and was graduated from Highland Park High School in Dallas and attended the University of Texas and the University of California at Los Angeles.

Her ascent to fame came accidentally when a press agent managed to get her on a publicity junket to Florida for a Jane Russell movie. She happily posed for photographers in a skimpy red bikini and stole the show from Miss Russell and other glamor girls on the trip.

This brought her a contract at Warner Bros.

Area Farmers May Get Emergency Aid

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP)— Everett Jose, state director of the Farmers Home Administration, said today he has recommended that more than a third of the counties in Missouri be designated as eligible for emergency loans.

"Farmers have sustained serious losses from excessive rains and flooding during the past 30 days," Jose said. "It will be very difficult for some farmers to obtain sufficient credit to continue in business from regular lenders."

Jose, who made his recommendation to Secretary of Agriculture Orville Freeman, said the rains and floods had come so late in the season that farmers were caught with $30 to $50 an acre invested in their crops, which for many will be a total loss.

He added that with ideal weather conditions it might be possible to plant some late soybean and forage crops.

Under the emergency program the interest rate to farmers is 3 per cent. The FHA maintains offices in each county to serve applicants.

Counties recommended for emergency designation are:

Adair, Andrew, Atchison, Boone, Buchanan, Butler, Caldwell, Calloway, Carroll, Charlton, Clark, Clay, Clinton, Cole, Cooper, Davies, DeKalb, Dunklin, Gasconade, Gentry, Grundy, Harrison, Holt, Howard, Jackson, Knox, Lafayette, Lewis, Livingston, Macon, Mercer, Mississippi, Moniteau, Montgomery, New Madrid, Nodaway, Osage, Pemiscot, Platte, Putnam, Randolph, Ray, Ripley, Saline, Scott, Schuyler, Scotland, Shelby, Stoddard and Worth.

WASHINGTON (AP) - Twenty years ago this summer, foreign aid, as it is known today, was born.

On June 5, 1947, Gen. George Catlett Marshall, President Truman's secretary of state, laid down at a Harvard College commencement his dramatic plan for the economic rebuilding of war - ravaged Europe.

The plan was to bear his name. The first broad, multi - country U.S. foreign aid program, it was to become the predecessor of all subsequent U.S. overseas assistance programs.

"The truth of the matter," Marshall said at Harvard, "is that Europe's requirements for the next three of four years of foreign goods and other essential products -- principally from America -- are so much greater than her ability to pay, that she must have substantial additional help or face economic, social and political deterioration of a very grave character.

"The remedy lies in breaking the vicious circle and restoring the confidence of the European people in the economic future of their own countries and of Europe as a whole."

The economies of the European nations at that time had been devastated by World War II. Hard cash reserves were being swallowed up by vital imports from the United States. U.S. strategists feared that if Europe's economies collapsed, the Communists would move in.

Early estimates were that the western European countries could recover economically in four years, with perhaps $25 billion in U.S. aid. Congress authorized a start of the program, beginning April 1948, under the then -new Economic Cooperation Administration - predecessor of today's Agency for International Development. Paul Gray Hoffman, a former president of the Studebaker Corp., was picked to run it. (He is now director of the United Nations Special Fund.) The European governments established the Organization for European Economic Cooperation to chart the use of Marshall Plan funds for their recovery.

During the fiscal years 1949-1952, the United States poured $13.7 billion into western Europe's economic rehabilitation. Some of the countries regained their economic momentum faster than the 4-year period originally expected, and the total U.S. aid for their economic rebuilding fell well below original U.S. estimates.

U.S. commodities shipped to western Europe under the Marshall Plan included $2.7 billion in foodstuffs, $532 million in feeds and fertilizer, $1.6 billion in fuel $1.4 billion in cotton, $2 billion in other raw materials and semi - finished products, and $1.9 billion in machinery and vehicles. The rest of the $13.7 billion covered miscellaneous items ranging from $53 million for technical services to $892 million for ocean freight.

During this 1949 - 1952 Marshall Plan period, Belgium - Luxembourg received $567 million in econmic assistance from the United States; Denmark $273 million; France $2.7 billion; West Germany $2.5 billion; Iceland $29 million; Ireland $147 million; Italy $1.5 billion; the Netherlands $982 million; Norway $255 million; Portugal $51 million; Spain $53 million; and the United Kingdom $3.2 billion.

Given to the West European countries on a regional, or multi-nation basis, was another $407 million in U.S. economic help. Result: A Europe more vigorous and prosperous than it had ever been. Also, a pattern for world help of poor nations by the rich.

Actress Jayne Mansfield Dies in Crash

NEW ORLEANS (AP)— Beautiful Jayne Mansfield and two men were killed early today when their car rammed the rear of a truck slowed by a cloud of mosquito fog across the highway.

It happened on a U.S. 90 curve near the Rigolets, the waterway connection between Lake Pontchartrain and the Gulf of Mexico, in New Orleans. It was about 2:25 a.m.

Killed with the voluptuous 34-year-old Hollywood actress were Samuel S. Brody, who was her lawyer and companion, and the 20-year-old chauffeur, Ronnie Harrison of Mississippi City.

Police said three of Miss Mansfield's children, asleep in the back seat of the big gray car, were injured. Physicians said they were in fair condition. They are Marie, 3, Mickey Jr., 8, and Zoltan, 6, her children by muscleman Mickey Hargitay.

Two of Miss Mansfield's four Chihuahua dogs also died in the shredded auto, which jammed up under the back of the truck trailer.

"It was the most dreadful thing I've ever seen," said George Carmichael, head of the New Orleans mosquito control unit, who was called to the scene by the driver of the insecticide fogging truck.

Miss Mansfield had left Biloxi, Miss., about midnight and was en route to New Orleans where she was scheduled to appear on a television program at noon.

Police said the actress was decapitated.

The accident happened about 30 miles east of downtown New Orleans on a winding, narrow stretch of the two-lane route— known as the Old Spanish Trail.

Richard Rambo, around 40, of Pensacola, Fla., driver of the truck, said the car appeared suddenly from the rear and ran beneath the truck's trailer. Rambo was not hurt.

A doctor at Charity Hospital said Miss Mansfield's children were undergoing X rays.

"None of them seems critical," he said. "We want to keep them here for observation, pending arrival of some relatives."

The hospital said Mickey suffered a fractured arm, while the

Two Night Thefts

Crowell's Service Station, 133 West Malone, was burglarized of about $75 Wednesday night or early today, police reported.

A suspect has been arrested in connection with the burglary and charges are expected to be filed against him later today. He was arrested on a charge of public intoxication.

Sgt. Ruben Templeton discovered the burglary at 3:41 a.m. on a routine check of the building. He noticed glass on a rear door of the station had been broken and the cigarette machine had been opened.

About $44 of the stolen money was contained in a bank bag hidden in the station, and about $9 was taken from the vending machine. The remainder of the money was taken from the cash register.

The burglar apparently cut himself on the door glass.

Police are seeking another man believed to have been involved in the breakin. Templeton arrested the suspect at 5:30 a.m. today. He had a cut on his right arm.

Another breakin was reported to police at 8:15 a.m. today by Claude Turner, owner of Turner's Garage, 106 East Gladys. An electric heavy - duty shop drill valued at $140 was reported stolen from the garage. Entry was gained by removing a plywood board, which had been placed in a rear window, and unlatching the door. Patrolman Charles E. Humphries investigated.

Three Women Face Charges

Three women were charged at 12:35 a.m. today with assault and affray, police reported.

Albertine M. Burrell, 322 Luther, and Mildred Burgon, 354 Magnolia, were arrested on Felker Street. Doretha Smith, 100 Dixie, was arrested at her residence.

The Smith woman signed a complaint on the other two women charging that they threw whisky in her face and hit her on the head at the Boo-ga-loo Club on Luther Street.

The other women then signed a complaint against the women when they were apprehended.

Donald D. Fauller, 1509 Matthews, was charged with public intoxication on South Main early today.

Margaret Robertson, 214 Bowman, was charged Wednesday night with petit larceny. Police said that she is suspected of taking a crossword puzzle book from Lindsey's M & H Grocery, 863 West Malone.

Ralph L. Gilliam, 917 Lora, was arrested Wednesday night on East Malone and charged with operating a motor vehicle without a city license.

Hospital Faces Nurse Walkout

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (AP) — After Friday the city- operated Handley Memorial Hospital will have no registered nurses.

Six of them, all the registered nurse staff, signed a petition 15 days ago that they would resign unless they received a "substantial raise."

George Bauer, city health director, accepted the resignations of the six nurses and one practical nurse Wednesday.

Illinois Man and Ironton Girl Killed

David John Cunbow, 40, Claredon Hill, Ill., was killed when his car left the highway and overturned last night at 6:05 p.m. on highway 61, two miles south of Old Appleton, and 17-year-old Glenda Sue Racer, Ironton, died at 6:40 a.m. from a fractured skull, yesterday, as the result of an accident in Ironton the night before.

Cunbow said driving a 1967 Mercury south and started to pass a truck when an approaching car caused him to go to the shoulder, run into a ditch and overturn.

His body was taken to the McCombs Funeral Home in Jackson.

A 1956 Chevrolet driven by Carilyn Joan Prier, 17, Tuesday slid on wet pavement, causing her to lose control, leave highway 21 in Ironton and strike a building.

Glenda Racer, a passenger, died in St. Mary's hospital, Ironton, while Misses Prier and Judy Ann Racer, 12, were injured critically, and taken to the St. Marys hospital in Ironton. All were from Ironton.

The body of Miss Racer was taken to the White Funeral Home in Ironton.

Four persons were injured on Interstate 55, two miles south of Cape Girardeau, Wednesday at 12:40 p.m.

A 1966 Chevrolet station wagon, driven by Betty Harrell, 58, Chaffee, came up too fast behind a 1963 Chevrolet, driven by Judith Poole, 27, Cape Girardeau, striking the car and causing it to hit a railing.

Injured in the Poole car were Kimberly Poole, 8, and Roger Poole 7, both of Cape Girardeau, cut and cruised. They were treated by a Cape Girardeau physician.

The Herrell woman received cuts and bruises on her knees and hands, and Sol Dockins, 83, a passenger in her car, had an injured spine and neck. Both were taken to the Southeast Missouri hospital in Cape Girardeau.

Rolwing Denounces Meat Inspection Bill

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Despite the charge of one Democrat that "this is the greatest political boondoggle we're going to see in a long time," House majority Democrats today passed and sent to Gov. Warren E. Hearnes authority to set up a state meat inspection system in the agriculture department.

Rep. David Rolwing, D-Charleston — Hearnes' home town — withdrew his amendment that would have forced packing houses to pay the cost of the inspections.

He said it was apparent his amendment "has about as much chance as the proverbial snowball." He also said the roll calls today indicated that "someone did a little rendering overnight."

And he hoped, he said, that some members who were changing their votes would really get the political appointments they apparently were promised for their switches.

A Republican amendment, to limit the number of inspectors to 50, was knocked off on a partisan vote despite the charge that only those seeking a boost in political patronage could oppose it.

Earlier, the House had reconsidered and defeated an amendment offered during Wednesday's near-riotous night session. It was estimated the cost of the inspection program, now generally covered by federal and local meat inspection teams, would come to about $400,000 a year.

Reconsideration of the amendment was asked today by Rep. E. J. Cantrell, D-Overland, the House appropriations chairman who normally questions any new program that will cost money. This time he apparently had no qualms about finding the money for the meat inspection plan.

The Senate completed action today on a bill giving the State Park Board power to build and lease plush resorts at state parks.

The vote sending the bill to the governor was 27-4. The House had acted previously.

Under the plan, the board could issue revenue bonds to build the resorts, then lease them to private operators for 25 years. Proposals have been made for such facilities at the Lake of the Ozarks and Table Rock parks.

The Senate also approved setting up a number of interim study committees.

They would investigate crime and court procedures, legislative problems and procedures, livestock, dairy, grain and other agricultural problems and mining and mine safety.

Also sent to the governor was a bill to let the State Water Pollution Board transmit federal funds to local water control districts. The federal government would contribute 50 per cent, the state 25 per cent and the local units 25 per cent.

The bill would allow a new sewer district to be set up in the Little Blue watershed in Jackson County.

The House passed its own version of a pay raise for top officers of the State Highway Department and sent it back to the Senate.

As the bill cleared the Senate it would have given chief engineer M.J. Snider $25,000 a year. The House version cut that to $22,500. He now gets $19,500.

Opponents to the raises accused top officials of promising pay raises for the lower echelon as soon as they got boosts. Then when their pay was raised, opponents said, the little men were ignored.

Both houses were generally ineffective in night sessions Wednesday despite the fact the session must end by midnight Friday.

The Senate sent to the governor a bill to pay to survivors any vacation pay due a state employe at the time of his death. Otherwise, Senate action was on bills that had to be sent back to the House.

The House did even less. The members relaxed at a barbecue and beer dinner provided by two of the members.

Back on the job they attempted to pass a bill recommended by Dexter Davis, state commissioner of agriculture, to enlarge his staff so Missouri could start inspecting meat.

Both Democrats and Republicans tried to amend the bill.

Rep. David Rolwing, D-Charleston, suggested the meat inspectors be merit system (civil service) employes in the otherwise political patronage department.

A Republican amendment would put the inspection procedure under the Division of Health, already under the merit system.

Both were defeated by the Democratic leadership. Finally a Republican, Rep. Joseph W. Hill of Kansas City, won adoption of

Israel Urged to Relent

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Pressure mounted on Israel today at the emergency session of the U.N. General Assembly to reverse its annexation of the Old City of Jerusalem.

Fifteen nonaligned nations submitted a resolution to the Assembly Wednesday calling on the Israeli government to withdraw its troops from all the territory seized from Egypt, Jordan and Syria in the six-day war that began June 5.

Introducing the resolution, Ambassador Danilo Lekic of Yugoslavia said the Old City was threatened with full integration into Israel and called for the 122-nation Assembly to adopt his resolution by Friday.

But meanwhile the Israeli government accomplished the integration with a proclamation enlarging the city limits of "Israeli Jerusalem" to include the Old City and some adjacent territory seized from Jordan.

Another resolution was reported in preparation expressing concern over steps the Israelis have taken regarding the Old City, declaring these invaid, and calling on Israel to do nothing further to prejudice the future status of the Old City. Jordan, Pakistan, Turkey, Spain and Peru were among the nations preparing the resolution.

Under the original U.N. partition plan for Palestine, Jerusalem was to be an international city, but Israel took the new part of the city during the 1948-49 Palestine war and Jordan seized the Old City. The Israelis drove the Jordanian army from the Old City — which contains the bulk of the Christian, Jewish and Moslem holy places — at the start of the June 5-11 war.

In a statement issued here Wednesday night, Jordan's King Hussein said his government viewed "with utmost concern the arbitrary measures taken by the Israeli authorities to effect the annexation of the Jordanian part of Jerusalem."

He called these steps "unacceptable and intolerable" and said "the whole world should stand firm" against them.

The U.S. State Department in a statement also warned Israel that its "hasty administrative action cannot be regarded as determining the future of the Holy places or the status of Jerusalem in relation to them."

The nonaligned resolution submitted by Yugoslavia was intended as a compromise to supplant a Soviet proposal to condemn Israel for aggression and demand withdrawal of its forces and reparations for Arab property destroyed in the fighting.

The new resolution dropped the provisions for condemnation and reparations and asked the Security Council to consider, after the withdrawal of Israeli troops, "questions pertaining to the situation in the area."

The United States said it would oppose the resolution despite Washington's warning to Israel on Jerusalem. A source in the U.S. mission said the resolution was "totally wrong" in calling for withdrawal without making any approach to a solution of the basic causes of the Arab-Israeli conflict.

Still another resolution on the over-all situation was under preparation by a group of Western countries and countries from Latin America, Africa and Asia.

It reportedly would call for withdrawal of Israeli troops if the Arab nations end their state of war against Israel. It also would provide for a U.N. mediator to try to work out the other complex issues in the Middle East tangle.

This resolution was reported to have U.S. backing.

WASHINGTON (AP) - Twenty years ago this summer, foreign aid, as it is known today, was born.

On June 5, 1947, Gen. George Catlett Marshall, President Truman's secretary of state, laid down at a Harvard College commencement his dramatic plan for the economic rebuilding of war - ravaged Europe.

The plan was to bear his name. The first broad, multi - country U.S. foreign aid program, it was to become the predecessor of all subsequent U.S. overseas assistance programs.

"The truth of the matter," Marshall said at Harvard, "is that Europe's requirements for the next three of four years of foreign goods and other essential products -- principally from America -- are so much greater than her ability to pay, that she must have substantial additional help or face economic, social and political deterioration of a very grave character.

"The remedy lies in breaking the vicious circle and restoring the confidence of the European people in the economic future of their own countries and of Europe as a whole."

The economies of the European nations at that time had been devastated by World War II. Hard cash reserves were being swallowed up by vital imports from the United States. U.S. strategists feared that if Europe's economies collapsed, the Communists would move in.

Early estimates were that the western European countries could recover economically in four years, with perhaps $25 billion in U.S. aid. Congress authorized a start of the program, beginning April 1948, under the then -new Economic Cooperation Administration - predecessor of today's Agency for International Development. Paul Gray Hoffman, a former president of the Studebaker Corp., was picked to run it. (He is now director of the United Nations Special Fund.) The European governments established the Organization for European Economic Cooperation to chart the use of Marshall Plan funds for their recovery.

During the fiscal years 1949-1952, the United States poured $13.7 billion into western Europe's economic rehabilitation. Some of the countries regained their economic momentum faster than the 4-year period originally expected, and the total U.S. aid for their economic rebuilding fell well below original U.S. estimates.

U.S. commodities shipped to western Europe under the Marshall Plan included $2.7 billion in foodstuffs, $532 million in feeds and fertilizer, $1.6 billion in fuel $1.4 billion in cotton, $2 billion in other raw materials and semi - finished products, and $1.9 billion in machinery and vehicles. The rest of the $13.7 billion covered miscellaneous items ranging from $53 million for technical services to $892 million for ocean freight.

During this 1949 - 1952 Marshall Plan period, Belgium - Luxembourg received $567 million in econmic assistance from the United States; Denmark $273 million; France $2.7 billion; West Germany $2.5 billion; Iceland $29 million; Ireland $147 million; Italy $1.5 billion; the Netherlands $982 million; Norway $255 million; Portugal $51 million; Spain $53 million; and the United Kingdom $3.2 billion.

Given to the West European countries on a regional, or multi-nation basis, was another $407 million in U.S. economic help. Result: A Europe more vigorous and prosperous than it had ever been. Also, a pattern for world help of poor nations by the rich.

THE LIONS CLUB had its regular meeting Wednesday at the miniature golf course. Twenty nine members played golf and ate a picnic lunch. Lee Bowman and Dick Inman tied with 41 for first place honors. Inman won a playoff on the 19th hole. He'll get a trophy. Meredith Lee was high shooter at 62 and received a free pass to Whitten's Lake.

Actress Jayne Mansfield Dies in Crash

NEW ORLEANS (AP)— Beautiful Jayne Mansfield and two men were killed early today when their car rammed the rear of a truck slowed by a cloud of mosquito fog across the highway.

It happened on a U.S. 90 curve near the Rigolets, the waterway connection between Lake Pontchartrain and the Gulf of Mexico, in New Orleans. It was about 2:25 a.m.

Killed with the voluptuous 34-year-old Hollywood actress were Samuel S. Brody, who was her lawyer and companion, and the 20-year-old chauffeur, Ronnie Harrison of Mississippi City.

Police said three of Miss Mansfield's children, asleep in the back seat of the big gray car, were injured. Physicians said they were in fair condition. They are Marie, 3, Mickey Jr., 8, and Zoltan, 6, her children by muscleman Mickey Hargitay.

Two of Miss Mansfield's four Chihuahua dogs also died in the shredded auto, which jammed up under the back of the truck trailer.

"It was the most dreadful thing I've ever seen," said George Carmichael, head of the New Orleans mosquito control unit, who was called to the scene by the driver of the insecticide fogging truck.

Miss Mansfield had left Biloxi, Miss., about midnight and was en route to New Orleans where she was scheduled to appear on a television program at noon.

Police said the actress was decapitated.

The accident happened about 30 miles east of downtown New Orleans on a winding, narrow stretch of the two-lane route—known as the Old Spanish Trail.

Richard Rambo, around 40, of Pensacola, Fla., driver of the truck, said the car appeared suddenly from the rear and ran beneath the truck's trailer. Rambo was not hurt.

A doctor at Charity Hospital said Miss Mansfield's children were undergoing X rays.

"None of them seems critical," he said. "We want to keep them here for observation, pending arrival of some relatives."

The hospital said Mickey suffered a fractured arm, while the

Two Night Thefts

Crowell's Service Station, 133 West Malone, was burglarized of about $75 Wednesday night or early today, police reported.

A suspect has been arrested in connection with the burglary and charges are expected to be filed against him later today. He was arrested on a charge of public intoxication.

Sgt. Ruben Templeton discovered the burglary at 3:41 a.m. on a routine check of the building. He noticed glass on a rear door of the station had been broken and the cigarette machine had been opened.

About $44 of the stolen money was contained in a bank bag hidden in the station, and about $9 was taken from the vending machine. The remainder of the money was taken from the cash register.

The burglar apparently cut himself on the door glass.

Police are seeking another man believed to have been involved in the breakin. Templeton arrested the suspect at 5:30 a.m. today. He had a cut on his right arm.

Another breakin was reported to police at 8:15 a.m. today by Claude Turner, owner of Turner's Garage, 106 East Gladys. An electric heavy - duty shop drill valued at $140 was reported stolen from the garage. Entry was gained by removing a plywood board, which had been placed in a rear window, and unlatching the door. Patrolman Charles E. Humphries investigated.

The Smith woman signed a complaint on the other two women charging that they threw whisky in her face and hit her on the head at the Boo-ga-loo Club on Luther Street.

The other women then signed a complaint against the women when they were apprehended.

Donald D. Fauller, 1509 Matthews, was charged with public intoxication on South Main early today.

Margaret Robertson, 214 Bowman, was charged Wednesday night with petit larceny. Police said that she is suspected of taking a crossword puzzle book from Lindsey's M & H Grocery, 863 West Malone.

Ralph L. Gilliam, 917 Lora, was arrested Wednesday night on East Malone and charged with operating a motor vehicle without a city license.

George Bauer, city health director, accepted the resignations of the six nurses and one practical nurse Wednesday.

Illinois Man and Ironton Girl Killed

David John Cunbow, 40, Clarendon Hill, Ill., was killed when his car left the highway and overturned last night at 6:05 p.m. on highway 61, two miles south of Old Appleton, and 17-year-old Glenda Sue Racer, Ironton, died at 6:40 a.m. from a fractured skull, yesterday, as the result of an accident in Ironton the night before.

Cunbow said driving a 1967 Mercury south and started to pass a truck when an approaching car caused him to go to the shoulder, run into a ditch and overturn.

His body was taken to the McCombs Funeral Home in Jackson.

A 1956 Chevrolet driven by Carilyn Joan Prier, 17, Tuesday slid on wet pavement, causing her to lose control, leave highway 21 in Ironton and strike a building.

Glenda Racer, a passenger, died in St. Mary's hospital, Ironton, while Misses Prier and Judy Ann Racer, 12, were injured critically, and taken to the St. Marys hospital in Ironton. All were from Ironton.

The body of Miss Racer was taken to the White Funeral Home in Ironton.

Four persons were injured on Interstate 55, two miles south of Cape Girardeau, Wednesday at 12:40 p.m.

A 1966 Chevrolet station wagon, driven by Betty Harrell, 58, Chaffee, came up too fast behind a 1963 Chevrolet, driven by Judith Poole, 27, Cape Girardeau, striking the car and causing it to hit a railing.

Injured in the Poole car were Kimberly Poole, 8, and Roger Poole 7, both of Cape Girardeau, cut and cruised. They were treated by a Cape Girardeau physician.

The Herrell woman received cuts and bruises on her knees and hands, and Sol Dockins, 83, a passenger in her car, had an injured spine and neck. Both were taken to the Southeast Missouri hospital in Cape Girardeau.

Rolwing Denounces Meat Inspection Bill

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Despite the charge of one Democrat that "this is the greatest political boondoggle we're going to see in a long time," House majority Democrats today passed and sent to Gov. Warren E. Hearnes authority to set up a state meat inspection system in the agriculture department.

Rep. David Rolwing, D-Charleston — Hearnes' home town — withdrew his amendment that would have forced packing houses to pay the cost of the inspections.

He said it was apparent his amendment "has about as much chance as the proverbial snowball." He also said the roll calls today indicated that "someone did a little rendering overnight."

And he hoped, he said, that some members who were changing their votes would really get the political appointments they apparently were promised for their switches.

A Republican amendment, to limit the number of inspectors to 50, was knocked off on a partisan vote despite the charge that only those seeking a boost in political patronage could oppose it.

Earlier, the House had reconsidered and defeated an amendment offered during Wednesday's near-riotous night session. It was estimated the cost of the inspection program, now generally covered by federal and local meat inspection teams, would come to about $400,000 a year.

Reconsideration of the amendment was asked today by Rep. E. J. Cantrell, D-Overland, the House appropriations chairman who normally questions any new program that will cost money. This time he apparently had no qualms about finding the money for the meat inspection plan.

The Senate completed action today on a bill giving the State Park Board power to build and lease plush resorts at state parks.

The vote sending the bill to the governor was 27-4. The House had acted previously.

Under the plan, the board could issue revenue bonds to build the resorts, then lease them to private operators for 25 years. Proposals have been made for such facilities at the Lake of the Ozarks and Table Rock parks.

The Senate also approved setting up a number of interim study committees.

They would investigate crime and court procedures, legislative problems and procedures, livestock, dairy, grain and other agricultural problems and mining and mine safety.

Also sent to the governor was a bill to let the State Water Pollution Board transmit federal funds to local water control districts. The federal government would contribute 50 per cent, the state 25 per cent and the local units 25 per cent.

The bill would allow a new sewer district to be set up in the Little Blue watershed in Jackson County.

The House passed its own version of a pay raise for top officers of the State Highway Department and sent it back to the Senate.

As the bill cleared the Senate it would have given chief engineer M.J. Snider $25,000 a year. The House version cut that to $22,500. He now gets $19,500.

Opponents to the raises accused top officials of promising pay raises for the lower echelon as soon as they got boosts. Then when their pay was raised, opponents said, the little men were ignored.

Both houses were generally ineffective in night sessions Wednesday despite the fact the session must end by midnight Friday.

The Senate sent to the governor a bill to pay to survivors any vacation pay due a state employe at the time of his death. Otherwise, Senate action was on bills that had to be sent back to the House.

The House did even less. The members relaxed at a barbecue and beer dinner provided by two of the members.

Back on the job they attempted to pass a bill recommended by Dexter Davis, state commissioner of agriculture, to enlarge his staff so Missouri could start inspecting meat.

Both Democrats and Republicans tried to amend the bill.

Rep. David Rolwing, D-Charleston, suggested the meat inspectors be merit system (civil service) employes in the otherwise political patronage department.

A Republican amendment would put the inspection procedure under the Division of Health, already under the merit system.

Both were defeated by the Democratic leadership. Finally a Republican, Rep. Joseph W. Hill of Kansas City, won adoption of

Israel Urged to Relent

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Pressure mounted on Israel today at the emergency session of the U.N. General Assembly to reverse its annexation of the Old City of Jerusalem.

Fifteen nonaligned nations submitted a resolution to the Assembly Wednesday calling on the Israeli government to withdraw its troops from all the territory seized from Egypt, Jordan and Syria in the six-day war that began June 5.

Introducing the resolution, Ambassador Danilo Lekic of Yugoslavia said the Old City was threatened with full integration into Israel and called for the 122-nation Assembly to adopt his resolution by Friday.

But meanwhile the Israeli government accomplished the integration with a proclamation enlarging the city limits of "Israeli Jerusalem" to include the Old City and some adjacent territory seized from Jordan.

Another resolution was reported in preparation expressing concern over steps the Israelis have taken regarding the Old City, declaring these invalid, and calling on Israel to do nothing further to prejudice the future status of the Old City. Jordan, Pakistan, Turkey, Spain and Peru were among the nations preparing the resolution.

Under the original U.N. partition plan for Palestine, Jerusalem was to be an international city, but Israel took the new part of the city during the 1948-49 Palestine war and Jordan seized the Old City. The Israelis drove the Jordanian army from the Old City — which contains the bulk of the Christian, Jewish and Moslem holy places — at the start of the June 5-11 war.

In a statement issued here Wednesday night, Jordan's King Hussein said his government viewed "with utmost concern the arbitrary measures taken by the Israeli authorities to effect the annexation of the Jordanian part of Jerusalem."

He called these steps "unacceptable and intolerable" and said "the whole world should stand firm" against them.

The U.S. State Department in a statement also warned Israel that its "hasty administrative action cannot be regarded as determining the future of the Holy places or the status of Jerusalem in relation to them."

The nonaligned resolution submitted by Yugoslavia was intended as a compromise to supplant a Soviet proposal to condemn Israel for aggression and demand withdrawal of its forces and reparations for Arab property destroyed in the fighting.

The new resolution dropped the provisions for condemnation and reparations and asked the Security Council to consider, after the withdrawal of Israeli troops, "questions pertaining to the situation in the area."

The United States said it would oppose the resolution despite Washington's warning to Israel on Jerusalem. A source in the U.S. mission said the resolution was "totally wrong" in calling for withdrawal without making any approach to a solution of the basic causes of the Arab-Israeli conflict.

Still another resolution on the over-all situation was under preparation by a group of Western countries and countries from Latin America, Africa and Asia.

It reportedly would call for withdrawal of Israeli troops if the Arab nations end their state of war against Israel. It also would provide for a U.N. mediator to try to work out the other complex issues in the Middle East tangle.

This resolution was reported to have U.S. backing.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

Improved standards in road edge striping and lane markings may one day save your life - even when you're driving in that huge "traffic snarl" known as New York City.

To give motorists an extra edge of safety, America's first city is decorating 180 miles of limited access highways in the five boroughs. Edge lining and lane marking is expected to improve driving safety during the day and at night.

Using special trucks and reflectorized paint, traffic department crews are spraying a solid white line four inches wide along malls and curbs that divide paved roadways and shoulders of the city's expressways.

A double benefit is gained from the white lines, Henry A. Barnes, traffic commissioner, explained.

Striping the malls and curbing, he said, establishes guide lines to help motorists determine the width of the roadway. Secondly, the striping provides a sharp distinction between the ordinary road surface and the "treated" curbs or shoulders which, at night, glow in a car's headlights. Such edging and striping proves especially valuable as a safety feature at night or during inclement weather.

The painting program, Barnes stated, may well be a perpetual procedure in Manhattan's effort to reduce accidents. When the present program is done, in about one year, another will be started, he said.

Techniques of painting on canvas and on pavement can require a far different brush stroke, as Barnes observed.

Pavement painting, for example, is done in several ways.

Where there is a slanted curb, the curb itself is painted. But a straight curb requires a different technique, in which paint is laid six inches away from the curb. This is designed to prevent drivers from running into or jumping the curb.

When there is no curb, painting is also done six inches in from the edge line to discourage drivers from wandering off the road.

Will New York retain a number one rating in such safety applications? Barnes believes it will, although edge striping and lane marking are becoming common safety features in many cities today.

THE LONG AND SHORT OF IT

The appearance of Missouri's junior United States Senator, Edward V. Long, at last weekend's annual meeting of the Missouri Cotton Producers Assn. would prompt the conclusion that Bowling Green's most famous citizen does not intend to withdraw from political life at the end of his term in 1968. At least, it can be observed that he does not intend to withdraw voluntarily.

Senator Long's political and legal tribulations are, by now, well known to readers of this newspaper, which has commented on them extensively. The comments are also well known to Senator Long, who observed to a staff member of The Daily Democrat at the MCPA meeting that some of this publication's recent editorials had been less than kind toward him. This is an understatement, but we plead guilty.

We are not, however, guilty of condoning such practices as Senator Long has been following during his Senate career. Nor are we guilty of thinking that Senator Long, despite his close organized labor connections, will be any asset to the Democratic party in 1968.

Next year's election may well prove to be, in Missouri as well as elsewhere, a Republican election year. Whether it is depends in large measure upon the Democrats and upon those party members who are selected in the primaries.

If Missouri Democrats care to renominate Senator Long to head their state ticket in 1968, then we predict that the political careers of a good many Democrats in Jefferson City will be terminated as of January 1, 1969.

We believe it is that serious, and before the Senate Ethics Committee gets through, we believe it will be even worse.

Indeed, if Senator Long is on the ticket, we predict the Democrats of Missouri will be on the short end of the 1968 election totals.

It's as simple as that.

Two major crashes in the same state and a few days apart claimed the lives of eight people and injured two others.

Both accidents had the same cause: wrong-way driving.

Wrong-way driving, in which a driver travels against traffic on an expressway, is becoming a bigger problem, police reports indicate.

Your chances of meeting such a driver - or inadvertently becoming one yourself - are also increasing as more and more miles of expressways are added and the Interstate system nears completion.

Driving in the wrong direction, which frequently results in head-on collisions, can be a fatal mistake. Wrong-way accidents, according to J. C. Womack, California highway engineer, are fatal six times more often than other driving accidents.

What are the causes of wrong-way driving? Traffic experts have discovered several.

Driving while intoxicated is perhaps the leading reason. Of 500 wrong-way drivers interviewed by the California Highway Patrol one-third had been drinking. An equal number were honestly confused. One-sixth had strayed over the median strip to the wrong side of the highway by carelessness. A small number were illiterate and could not read traffic signs.

What is being done to stop wrong-way driving?

Many traffic experts believe that reflective "Wrong Way" signs used with "Do Not Enter" signs are the best solution to prevent drivers from entering expressways on exit ramps or leaving expressways by entrance ramps.

In Chicago, for example, large reflective signs, highly visible in headlights at night, are being erected on both sides of many exit ramps on the Kennedy expressway. Installation of such signs is planned for other expressways in the area.

According to the Michigan department of state highways, "Do Not Enter - Wrong Way" warning signs posted at exit ramps have substantially reduced wrong-way movements and head-on collisions.

If you encounter a wrong-way driver, don't try to warn him, one safety expert said. Signal a right turn, pull off on the shoulder and get out of the way, he advised.

THE VURST DAY OF SUMMER

This is a summer of anniversaries. New York City will celebrate the 50th year of Guggenheim Memorial Concerts in Central Park on Wednesday, June 21, the first day of summer. Appropriately, nickel beer, nickel ice cream, and nickel hot dogs will be served.

Just a few days later, the Coney Island Chamber of Commerce will celebrate what it claims as the 100th anniversary of the birth of the hot dog. The Chamber asserts that in the summer of 1867 a Coney Island pie hawker named Charlie Feltman put a hot sausage in a toasted wiener roll and sold it for a dime as a frankfurter - after his native Frankfurt, Germany. The Coney Island celebration will be centered on Nathan's Famous, the boardwalk stand which has sold more than 200 million franks.

Stories of the origin of the hot dog story. But the naming of the savory is generally attributed to Tad Dorgan, a New York newspaper cartoonist who saw franks being served for the first time in the early 1900's at the Polo Grounds. Dorgan also is responsible for "dumb Dora," "the cat's pajamas," and other nifties.

As for summer, weathermen are not prepared to say that the spring-that-never-was portends a cold summer. Since 1960 there have been indications that the North American climate is cooling slightly. It might be well to keep earmuffs handy. In 1816, snow fell in New England and parts of New York in June, July, and August.

NEW YORK (AP) — One of the great American myths is "the typical New Yorker."

By tradition, the typical New Yorker is a sophisticated fellow who hobnobs with celebrities, dwells in a penthouse, reads all the latest best sellers, eats only at the fanciest restaurants, spends his evenings at night clubs, gets daily inside tips on what to buy in Wall Street, and knows whom to call at City Hall if he wants to get a traffic ticket fixed.

He's a "guy in the know," and compared to him anybody who dwells west of the Hudson River is a hinterland hayseed.

Ah, me, if life were only like that!

After 30 years of dwelling in O. Henry's fabled Baghdad on the Subway, I've decided that when it comes to "the typical New Yorker" of romantic legend, there probably ain't no such animal.

The "typical New Yorker," if you do happen to meet one, usually turns out to be an out-of-towner here for a lark on a Texas-sized expense account.

"I don't see how you stand the pace here," he says, leaving for home after a week or two spent trying to paint the big city a vivid crimson. "It would get me down."

Such remarks make a real New Yorker want to slit the out-of-towner's throat quietly. For the real New Yorker, like most of his brethren across the country, has to make do on a pretty tight budget. He doesn't see as much of the high-living side of the city in a year as a fast-buck visitor sees in a few nights.

There has been a steady exodus of middle-class white people from the city for several decades. Now the middle-class Negroes and Puerto Ricans are doing the same thing. As soon as they can afford to, they also are moving out to the suburbs in Westchester County and Long Island.

It isn't the mass of natives who keep the $20-a-meal glitter spots and the big expensive Broadway musicals running. New York is a work city, rather than "Fun City," to them.

Your real New Yorker is a guy who labors at an anonymous skyscraper desk and selects his lunch from a drug counter menu.

Your real New Yorker is a Wall Street stenographer who pays more than she can afford for a tiny dark walkup apartment in a Greenwich Village building that would probably be condemned in Vermont as an eyesore.

But they all share that same big dream: to earn enough so they can move away to somewhere cleaner and less noisy and less expensive.

Then they can come back occasionally as tourists and enjoy the big city in the way that only the out-of-towner can, pockets loaded with butter-and-egg money burning to be spent.

VIETNAM: CHINA'S WAR OF ATTRITION

A general has sobering words for Americans.

The general is not William C. Westmoreland, who, in an action unprecedented for a field commander in a time of war, came home from Vietnam to address a joint session of Congress. He is Brig. Gen. Samuel B. Griffith (USMC, Ret.)

Like Westmoreland, however, Griffith foresees no early end to the righting in Vietnam. Holder of a Ph. D. from Oxford in Chinese history as well as the Distinguished Service Cross, Griffith, now a research associate at the Hoover Institution on War, Revolution and Peace, believes the war will go on as long as Communist China wants it to go on.

In a recently published book, "The Chinese People's Liberation Army," he writes that Peking "will exert every pressure and take every measure short of direct intervention on the ground to prolong the figthing in South Vietnam and to prevent negotiation of a settlement."

China's regional foreign policy goals have not changed since the Korean War, says Griffith. They are the elimination of American influence and presence from the Asia rimlands and the eventual breaking out of what she sees as an encirclement of her by hostile and menacing American power.

For some time to come, however, she will not be able to muster the economic, political, means to enable her to accomplish these objectives.

Thus an indefinite protration of hostilities in Vietnam is altogether favorable to China's interests - "for a long war will sap American energies, focus American attention on this area to the exclusion of others, drain American strength, impair American morale, damage American prestige, undermine American alliances and so concretely alter 'the balance of forces' to China's benefit."

It has often been said that we must learn to live with an aggressive, militant China.

This is true, agrees Griffith. "But it is equally true that China must learn to live with us and with the world community. At the present time she shows slight indication of wishing to do either."

IMPORTANCE OF RELIGION DECLINES IN AMERICA

When we say "one nation under God" we take it for granted that Americans are a religious people. But are they? Just how important is religion in the U. S., and to how many Americans? A Catholic Digest survey was designed to find out. George Gallup's public - opinion interviewers asked American adults, "How important would you say religion is in your own life -- very important, fairly important, or not very important?" This same question was asked in 1952; the current poll seeks to compare the change in attitudes over this 14-year period.

In a representative cross section of people from every region, religion, and walk of life 75% said religion was very important to them in 1952. Today, the percentage is down to 70%. Fourteen years ago 20% and religion was fairly important; 22% think so today. The number who regard religion as not very important is also up 2% - from 5% to 7&leoer to 7%.

The Congregationalists are the only ones stating that religion is more important is also up 2% - from 5% to 7%.

The Congregationalists are the only ones stating that religion is more important in 1966 than in 1952 -- from 57% to 62%. In 1952, 47% of the Jews thought religion very important; in 1966, only 30% do. Religion is very important; in 1966, only 30% do. Religion is very important to 76% of Roman Catholics; it was 83% 14 years ago. All Protestant denominations are down but 2% - from 76% to 74%.

Among the Protestants, religion is very important to 82% of the Baptists; it was 84% in 1952. The greatest decline is the Methodists, 65% of whom say religion is very important compared to 74% 14 years ago. Sixty-two percent of Episcopalians think religion is very important today; 67% thought so in 1952. Lutherans are down 4% (from 70% to 66%) Presbyterians down 1% (from 72% to 71%).

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- George Brown, former teamster, now foreign secretary for her majesty the queen of England, was entertained by President Johnson at luncheon last week, and complained audibly that he was the only dignitary present who wore brown shoes.

Sitting beside Vice President Humphrey, once elected as a Democratic farmer labor representative from Minnesota, he engaged in some quick repartee with HHH about the danger of upstaging their respective bosses, the prime minister and the President.

"When I returned from the continent with my prime minister," said Brown, "there was a big crowd waiting for us at the airport. I looked out at the crowd, saw my wife and my little granddaughter. The photographers, of course, were there to greet them. But when my granddaughter came running across the airport and threw her arms around my neck the cameramen all deserted the PM and ran over to take me.

"This is no way for a foreign minister to act," Brown told Humphrey. "You don't get anywhere upstaging the prime minister."

Brown proceeded to tell how when vice president Humphrey was in London he visited No. 10 Downing Street, Chequers and Windsor Palace.

"Then I gave a little luncheon for him and told him I wanted him to meet my granddaughter. We went to my home but my granddaughter wasn't there. However, we did find my little dog. When the photographers came up I admonished Hubert, 'don't grab him by the ears.'"

Next day, Vice President Humphrey recalls, the British newspapers came out with a photograph of the vice president petting his dog, captioned, "Foreign Secretary advises Humphrey not to pull British Dog's ears."

WHIPPED IN ABSENTIA

Brown remarked that the British cabinet was "giving me the devil" since his speech at the United Nations admonishing Israel.

"Now that I'm away from my colleagues in the cabinet they're already giving me a whipping."

The foreign secretary sat beside congressman William Bates of Massachusetts who, when the conversation turned to No. 10 Downing Street, asked Brown, "do you know who Downing was?"

"Yes," said Brown. "An American. When you see my brother," he added, referring to the younger Brown who is a distinguished professor of history, "please tell him that this old Teamster knows some history too."

Vice President Humphrey told Brown that he had noted a portrait of William Pitt hanging in No. 10 Downing and was rather concerned to see it had been painted by an artist named Romney.

"I take exception to that kind of partisanship," said the vice president. "However, I was glad to see that the portrait of James Fox, the parliamentarian who took up for the American colonies, was hung in a place of honor."

BUILT TO LAST

Speaking of Americans, Brown mentioned the fact that he had been born in a London flat built by an American named Samuel Peabody, who at that time was considered a great benefactor because he had tried to remedy the housing shortage.

"That house is now 100 years old and it still stands. I was 16 before I ever saw a water tap," said Brown. "What toilet facilities we had were communal. If you see my mother, don't tell her I complained about my birthplace, but it was a very dull, dingy abode, not given to much inspiration.

"I told the prime minister," continued Brown, "that if I'm ever knighted I'll probably be given the title 'Lord Peabody of the building.'"

Brown told how his brother, seven years younger, had run for parliament and has proposed a new tax just three days before election.

"'I need to have words with you,' I told my brother. 'You might be a fine professor but you're not a sound politician. You're going to get whipped. You don't propose a tax increase just before election.' And I described this in Teamster Irish terms. My brother was not pleased.

"Whereupon he won a smashing victory. The next day he phoned me and said, 'perhaps if you can spare the time you'd like to see me again on the subject of politics.'"

A BOMBS AND DICE

The gambling fraternity and citizens of Las Vegas, Nevada, will be glad to know that the atomic energy commission is not planning to disrupt the sporting atmosphere of their city with close - up nuclear blasts.

AEC chairman Glenn Seaborg told the House Appropriations Committee the other day that "higher yield" nuclear devices would not be tested at the present site in Nevada, because Las Vegas "is just too close."

"It would shake up the dice?" suggested Rep. Thomas G. Morris, D-N.M.

"Seismic effects, of course," said Seaborg, adding with a grin: "As congressman Morris says, it will shake up the dice on the table and destroy the odds. More serious than that, it shakes the buildings and so forth and could lead to unsafe conditions. We are looking at test sites in alternative places."

AMERICANA

Students of history, railroad buffs, teachers, writers and others will find the eleventh edition of the "Railroad Film Directory", released recently by the Association of American Railroads to be of extraordinary interest. The Director is a guide to more than 345 films and slide-films owned by or relating to the American railroads.

There are films for child and adult entertainment, films on safety, films on freight handling -- one is even based on the ever-popular children's classic about "The Little Engine That Could."

These films are far more than a dry documentary of an industry. One is entitled "The Great Train Robbery", the famous pioneer film production by Edison in 1903. Others have to do with the Civil War period, the opening of the West, Indian ceremonials, inventions in America's growth, the loggin railroads of the West, iron ore from Labrador, tomorrow' railroading, etc., through an almost endless list.

The "Railroad Film Directory" is in effect a directory of American folklore. This is logical, since the rails have been and are the backbone of the American transportation system, and during most of the life of the nation have been closely associated with the important events that have shaped American history. The story of the railroads is the story of the United States.

If our lawmakers have the power to declare war (they do) then it's crystal clear to all, they also have the power to prevent undeclared war at anytime. This being the case, then the full responsibility for this destructive war in the far east rests on their shoulders. Said war being sparked by a clash of so called religeon 10,000 miles from home.

HONOR GUARD FOR FREEDOM

Adoption of a constitutional amendment to reform the Electoral College by establishing the Congressional District Plan of choosing presidential electors would have the important effect of doing away with the "straw man" status that such electors now occupy. They would be men and women of prestige in their districts, known to the voters and influential with them.

Their high caliber would make them useful in many capacities during the presidential campaign. But their value to the nation would not end when they cast their votes, each as the representative of the people of his district, for President and Vice President. The formation of 538 electors and 538 runners-up, probably of equal stature with the winners, into a Former Nominees of Presidential Elector Committee would establish an honor guard for liberty.

Their study of urgent government problems and recommendations for their solution could be a vital force for preservation of the Republic. They would form a body of proven competence upon which the President could call for counsel. There is no question that the Former Nominees of Presidential Elector Committee would have vastly more influence than committees so frequently organized to pursue one side of a given subject of national concern.

The contemplation of this potentially great committee is fairly dependent upon an amendment to the U. S. Constitution under which each congressional district would choose one presidential elector and each state in an election at large would choose two electors. Resolutions proposing such an amendment are now before Congress. Congressional approval would be in the public interest. HLH

Inside Labor

INSIDE REUTHER'S STRATEGY

Story Behind the Coming War on the Auto-Labor Front.

DETROIT - There are men here - and they do not count themselves greybeards - who recall when union brother fought union brother with metal chains and iron bars and in last resort hammered away with their fists. They moved on each other in long auto caravans and disciplined platoon-sized gangs.

They fought for jurisdiction over skilled jobs in the big factories here and up the line in city after city. It may come to this soon enough.

This is the story to watch as Walter Reuther and the automobile company executives on or about July 10, begin their trienniel ritual when they run the gamut and the gauntlet before the TV cameras and begin formal renogotiations of contracts which expire Sept. 6.

There will be a long siege and splashing headlines and much shuttling between this car city and the national capital. Eloquently Reuther will denounce the corporate leaders in the class struggle vituperation that everyone expects. That's tradition. He will demand much. That's tradition.

But the key phrase in the key issue in all the jousting with the corporate men who have developed a new eloquence of their own will be something new to the public. Mark it well. It's "contracting out."

Before the final struggle is over late this year, Reuther and his colleagues will make that phrase as famous a household word as their "guaranteed annual wage."

"Contracting out" merely is the corporate practice of calling in outside contractors to supply skilled labor for some task such as carpentering, electrical work, honing up some machines or building some new structures. The outsiders are union men. But they don't belong to Reuther's United Auto Workers. They are members of the AFL-CIO building and construction trades unions whose leaders Reuther has been berating for years.

Now, says Reuther, who is co-chairman of the UAW's Skilled Trades Dept. (some 200,000 strong), this must stop if there are auto union men available and willing to do the work inside the plant. This involves tens of thousands of jobs and hundreds of millions of dollars.

The companies have said, in effect, that contracting out really is no business of the auto union. It's a management right, the executives argue.

But the federal courts have ruled that the companies must bargain with the auto union over such practices - call it contracting out or sub-contracting. This decision came down last February in a case involving General Motors' effort to change operations at its South Gate, Calif., plant. A shift in operations affected six jobs. The men were given other work. But the union sued, saying that the company had to negotiate with it anyway merely on principle - even if no one was laid off at the moment. And the union won.

So Reuther and his colleagues will go into negotiations soon and demand that before there is contracting out, the work must be offered to UAW men who are on layoff, on shorter hours or have not been offered the work.

There are other demands involving sub-contracting. But essentially the union wants control of the work and the jobs. The new technology and "computerology," says the auto union, is wiping out jobs and what is left should go to the auto union members.

And the UAW wants a joint labor-management committee to decide such issues. Furthermore, the union demands that future contracts shall give the UAW skilled tradesmen the "right to strike" when necessary to enforce their position on contracting out.

Management is not about to dash out to buy pens for the signing of such a pact. The companies know they will have to give skilled workers a bigger raise than the other hourly rated employes. This will make it more costly to repair and extend or maintain plants. And it will be more and more desirable to put in new automation and computer operations - as well as to contract out.

Eventually there will be a showdown. The companies will insist on their rights to bring in contractors. The auto union skilled workers are of such a mood they will picket.

The outside construction trades unionists, who have the Teamsters with them, aren't often deterred by "enemy" picket lines. It will be a noisy show.

But it is coming. Just look behind the rhetoric.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

Improved standards in road edge striping and lane markings may one day save your life - even when you're driving in that huge "traffic snarl" known as New York City.

To give motorists an extra edge of safety, America's first city is decorating 180 miles of limited access highways in the five boroughs. Edge lining and lane marking is expected to improve driving safety during the day and at night.

Using special trucks and reflectorized paint, traffic department crews are spraying a solid white line four inches wide along malls and curbs that divide paved roadways and shoulders of the city's expressways.

A double benefit is gained from the white lines, Henry A. Barnes, traffic commissioner, explained.

Striping the malls and curbing, he said, establishes guide lines to help motorists determine the width of the roadway. Secondly, the striping provides a sharp distinction between the ordinary road surface and the "treated" curbs or shoulders which, at night, glow in a car's headlights. Such edging and striping proves especially valuable as a safety feature at night or during inclement weather.

The painting program, Barnes stated, may well be a perpetual procedure in Manhattan's effort to reduce accidents. When the present program is done, in about one year, another will be started, he said.

Techniques of painting on canvas and on pavement can require a far different brush stroke, as Barnes observed.

Pavement painting, for example, is done in several ways.

Where there is a slanted curb, the curb itself is painted. But a straight curb requires a different technique, in which paint is laid six inches away from the curb. This is designed to prevent drivers from running into or jumping the curb.

When there is no curb, painting is also done six inches in from the edge line to discourage drivers from wandering off the road.

Will New York retain a number one rating in such safety applications? Barnes believes it will, although edge striping and lane marking are becoming common safety features in many cities today.

THE LONG AND SHORT OF IT

The appearance of Missouri's junior United States Senator, Edward V. Long, at last weekend's annual meeting of the Missouri Cotton Producers Assn. would prompt the conclusion that Bowling Green's most famous citizen does not intend to withdraw from political life at the end of his term in 1968. At least, it can be observed that he does not intend to withdraw voluntarily.

Senator Long's political and legal tribulations are, by now, well known to readers of this newspaper, which has commented on them extensively. The comments are also well known to Senator Long, who observed to a staff member of The Daily Democrat at the MCPA meeting that some of this publication's recent editorials had been less than kind toward him. This is an understatement, but we plead guilty.

We are not, however, guilty of condoning such practices as Senator Long has been following during his Senate career. Nor are we guilty of thinking that Senator Long, despite his close organized labor connections, will be any asset to the Democratic party in 1968.

Next year's election may well prove to be, in Missouri as well as elsewhere, a Republican election year. Whether it is depends in large measure upon the Democrats and upon those party members who are selected in the primaries.

If Missouri Democrats care to renominate Senator Long to head their state ticket in 1968, then we predict that the political careers of a good many Democrats in Jefferson City will be terminated as of January 1, 1969.

We believe it is that serious, and before the Senate Ethics Committee gets through, we believe it will be even worse.

Indeed, if Senator Long is on the ticket, we predict the Democrats of Missouri will be on the short end of the 1968 election totals.

It's as simple as that.

Two major crashes in the same state and a few days apart claimed the lives of eight people and injured two others.

Both accidents had the same cause: wrong-way driving.

Wrong-way driving, in which a driver travels against traffic on an expressway, is becoming a bigger problem, police reports indicate.

Your chances of meeting such a driver - or inadvertently becoming one yourself - are also increasing as more and more miles of expressways are added and the Interstate system nears completion.

Driving in the wrong direction, which frequently results in head-on collisions, can be a fatal mistake. Wrong-way accidents, according to J. C. Womack, California highway engineer, are fatal six times more often than other driving accidents.

What are the causes of wrong-way driving? Traffic experts have discovered several.

Driving while intoxicated is perhaps the leading reason. Of 500 wrong-way drivers interviewed by the California Highway Patrol one-third had been drinking. An equal number were honestly confused. One-sixth had strayed over the median strip to the wrong side of the highway by carelessness. A small number were illiterate and could not read traffic signs.

What is being done to stop wrong-way driving?

Many traffic experts believe that reflective "Wrong Way" signs used with "Do Not Enter" signs are the best solution to prevent drivers from entering expressways on exit ramps or leaving expressways by entrance ramps.

In Chicago, for example, large reflective signs, highly visible in headlights at night, are being erected on both sides of many exit ramps on the Kennedy expressway. Installation of such signs is planned for other expressways in the area.

According to the Michigan department of state highways, "Do Not Enter - Wrong Way" warning signs posted at exit ramps have substantially reduced wrong-way movements and head-on collisions.

If you encounter a wrong-way driver, don't try to warn him, one safety expert said. Signal a right turn, pull off on the shoulder and get out of the way, he advised.

THE VURST DAY OF SUMMER

This is a summer of anniversaries. New York City will celebrate the 50th year of Guggenheim Memorial Concerts in Central Park on Wednesday, June 21, the first day of summer. Appropriately, nickel beer, nickel ice cream, and nickel hot dogs will be served.

Just a few days later, the Coney Island Chamber of Commerce will celebrate what it claims as the 100th anniversary of the birth of the hot dog. The Chamber asserts that in the summer of 1867 a Coney Island pie hawker named Charlie Feltman put a hot sausage in a toasted wiener roll and sold it for a dime as a frankfurter - after his native Frankfurt, Germany. The Coney Island celebration will be centered on Nathan's Famous, the boardwalk stand which has sold more than 200 million franks.

Stories of the origin of the hot dog story. But the naming of the savory is generally attributed to Tad Dorgan, a New York newspaper cartoonist who saw franks being served for the first time in the early 1900's at the Polo Grounds. Dorgan also is responsible for "dumb Dora," "the cat's pajamas," and other nifties.

As for summer, weathermen are not prepared to say that the spring-that-never-was portends a cold summer. Since 1960 there have been indications that the North American climate is cooling slightly. It might be well to keep earmuffs handy. In 1816, snow fell in New England and parts of New York in June, July, and August.

NEW YORK (AP) — One of the great American myths is "the typical New Yorker."

By tradition, the typical New Yorker is a sophisticated fellow who hobnobs with celebrities, dwells in a penthouse, reads all the latest best sellers, eats only at the fanciest restaurants, spends his evenings at night clubs, gets daily inside tips on what to buy in Wall Street, and knows whom to call at City Hall if he wants to get a traffic ticket fixed.

He's a "guy in the know," and compared to him anybody who dwells west of the Hudson River is a hinterland hayseed.

Ah, me, if life were only like that!

After 30 years of dwelling in O. Henry's fabled Baghdad on the Subway, I've decided that when it comes to "the typical New Yorker" of romantic legend, there probably ain't no such animal.

The "typical New Yorker," if you do happen to meet one, usually turns out to be an out-of-towner here for a lark on a Texas-sized expense account.

"I don't see how you stand the pace here," he says, leaving for home after a week or two spent trying to paint the big city a vivid crimson. "It would get me down."

Such remarks make a real New Yorker want to slit the out-of-towner's throat quietly. For the real New Yorker, like most of his brethren across the country, has to make do on a pretty tight budget. He doesn't see as much of the high-living side of the city in a year as a fast-buck visitor sees in a few nights.

There has been a steady exodus of middle-class white people from the city for several decades. Now the middle-class Negroes and Puerto Ricans are doing the same thing. As soon as they can afford to, they also are moving out to the suburbs in Westchester County and Long Island.

But they all share that same big dream: to earn enough so they can move away to somewhere cleaner and less noisy and less expensive.

Then they can come back occasionally as tourists and enjoy the big city in the way that only the out-of-towner can, pockets loaded with butter-and-egg money burning to be spent.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- George Brown, former teamster, now foreign secretary for her majesty the queen of England, was entertained by President Johnson at luncheon last week, and complained audibly that he was the only dignitary present who wore brown shoes.

Sitting beside Vice President Humphrey, once elected as a Democratic farmer labor representative from Minnesota, he engaged in some quick repartee with HHH about the danger of upstaging their respective bosses, the prime minister and the President.

"When I returned from the continent with my prime minister," said Brown, "there was a big crowd waiting for us at the airport. I looked out at the crowd, saw my wife and my little granddaughter. The photographers, of course, were there to greet them. But when my granddaughter came running across the airport and threw her arms around my neck the cameramen all deserted the PM and ran over to take me.

"This is no way for a foreign minister to act," Brown told Humphrey. "You don't get anywhere upstaging the prime minister."

Brown proceeded to tell how when vice president Humphrey was in London he visited No. 10 Downing Street, Chequers and Windsor Palace.

"Then I gave a little luncheon for him and told him I wanted him to meet my granddaughter. We went to my home but my granddaughter wasn't there. However, we did find my little dog. When the photographers came up I admonished Hubert, 'don't grab him by the ears.'"

Next day, Vice President Humphrey recalls, the British newspapers came out with a photograph of the vice president petting his dog, captioned, "Foreign Secretary advises Humphrey not to pull British Dog's ears."

WHIPPED IN ABSENTIA

Brown remarked that the British cabinet was "giving me the devil" since his speech at the United Nations admonishing Israel.

"Now that I'm away from my colleagues in the cabinet they're already giving me a whipping."

The foreign secretary sat beside congressman William Bates of Massachusetts who, when the conversation turned to No. 10 Downing Street, asked Brown, "do you know who Downing was?"

"Yes," said Brown. "An American. When you see my brother," he added, referring to the younger Brown who is a distinguished professor of history, "please tell him that this old Teamster knows some history too."

Vice President Humphrey told Brown that he had noted a portrait of William Pitt hanging in No. 10 Downing and was rather concerned to see it had been painted by an artist named Romney.

"I take exception to that kind of partisanship," said the vice president. "However, I was glad to see that the portrait of James Fox, the parliamentarian who took up for the American colonies, was hung in a place of honor."

BUILT TO LAST

Speaking of Americans, Brown mentioned the fact that he had been born in a London flat built by an American named Samuel Peabody, who at that time was considered a great benefactor because he had tried to remedy the housing shortage.

"That house is now 100 years old and it still stands. I was 16 before I ever saw a water tap," said Brown. "What toilet facilities we had were communal. If you see my mother, don't tell her I complained about my birthplace, but it was a very dull, dingy abode, not given to much inspiration.

"I told the prime minister," continued Brown, "that if I'm ever knighted I'll probably be given the title 'Lord Peabody of the building.'"

Brown told how his brother, seven years younger, had run for parliament and has proposed a new tax just three days before election.

"'I need to have words with you,' I told my brother. 'You might be a fine professor but you're not a sound politician. You're going to get whipped. You don't propose a tax increase just before election.' And I lescribed this in Teamster Irish terms. My brother was not pleased.

"Whereupon he won a smashing victory. The next day he phoned me and said, 'perhaps if you can spare the time you'd like to see me again on the subject of politics.'"

A BOMBS AND DICE

The gambling fraternity and citizens of Las Vegas, Nevada, will be glad to know that the atomic energy commission is not planning to disrupt the sporting atmosphere of their city with close - up nuclear blasts.

AEC chairman Glenn Seaborg told the House Appropriations Committee the other day that "higher yield" nuclear devices would not be tested at the present site in Nevada, because Las Vegas "is just too close."

"It would shake up the dice?" suggested Rep. Thomas G. Morris, D-N.M.

"Seismic effects, of course," said Seaborg, adding with a grin: "As congressman Morris says, it will shake up the dice on the table and destroy the odds. More serious than that, it shakes the buildings and so forth and could lead to unsafe conditions. We are looking at test sites in alternative places."

The bigger a man's head gets, the easier it is to fill his shoes.

AMERICANA

Students of history, railroac buffs, teachers, writers and others will find the eleventh edition of the "Railroad Film Directory", released recently by the Association of American Railroads to be of extraordinary interest. The Director is a guide to more than 345 films and slide-films owned by or relating to the American railroads.

There are films for child and adult entertainment, films on safety, films on freight handling -- one is even based on the ever-popular children's classic about "The Little Engine That Could."

These films are far more than a dry documentary of an industry. One is entitled "The Great Train Robbery", the famous pioneer film production by Edison in 1903. Others have to do with the Civil War period, the opening of the West, Indian ceremonials, inventions in America's growth, the loggin railroads of the West, iron ore from Labrador, tomorrow' railroading, etc., through an almost endless list.

The "Railroad Film Directory" is in effect a directory of American folklore. This is logical, since the rails have been and are the backbone of the American transportation system, and during most of the life of the nation have been closely associated with the important events that have shaped American history. The story of the railroads is the story of the United States.

A gang from the office had stopped by for a few drinks after work. As the evening wore on, one young executive glanced at his watch and started to leave.

"Hey, Joe," the others yelled, "you're not going already?"

"No," said Joe. "I'm just going down to miss my last train, I'll be right back."

Doc. Duncan Says

We have said it once, now we repeat it.

If our lawmakers have the power to declare war (they do) then it's crystal clear to all, they also have the power to prevent undeclared war at anytime. This being the case, then the full responsibility for this destructive war in the far east rests on their shoulders. Said war being sparked by a clash of so called religeon 10,000 miles from home.

H. L. Hunt Says

HONOR GUARD FOR FREEDOM

Adoption of a constitutional amendment to reform the Electoral College by establishing the Congressional District Plan of choosing presidential electors would have the important effect of doing away with the "straw man" status that such electors now occupy. They would be men and women of prestige in their districts, known to the voters and influential with them.

Their high caliber would make them useful in many capacities during the presidential campaign. But their value to the nation would not end when they cast their votes, each as the representative of the people of his district, for President and Vice President. The formation of 538 electors and 538 runners-up, probably of equal stature with the winners, into a Former Nominees of Presidential Elector Committee would establish an honor guard for liberty.

Their study of urgent government problems and recommendations for their solution could be a vital force for preservation of the Republic. They would form a body of proven competence upon which the President could call for counsel. There is no question that the Former Nominees of Presidential Elector Committee would have vastly more influence than committees so frequently organized to pursue one side of a given subject of national concern.

The contemplation of this potentially great committee is fairly dependent upon an amendment to the U. S. Constitution under which each congressional district would choose one presidential elector and each state in an election at large would choose two electors. Resolutions proposing such an amendment are now before Congress. Congressional approval would be in the public interest. HLH

Inside Labor

INSIDE REUTHER'S STRATEGY

Story Behind the Coming War on the Auto-Labor Front.

DETROIT - There are men here - and they do not count themselves greybeards - who recall when union brother fought union brother with metal chains and iron bars and in last resort hammered away with their fists. They moved on each other in long auto caravans and disciplined platoon-sized gangs.

They fought for jurisdiction over skilled jobs in the big factories here and up the line in city after city. It may come to this soon enough.

This is the story to watch as Walter Reuther and the automobile company executives on or about July 10, begin their trienniel ritual when they run the gamut and the gauntlet before the TV cameras and begin formal renogotiations of contracts which expire Sept. 6.

There will be a long siege and splashing headlines and much shuttling between this car city and the national capital. Eloquently Reuther will denounce the corporate leaders in the class struggle vituperation that everyone expects. That's tradition. He will demand much. That's tradition.

But the key phrase in the key issue in all the jousting with the corporate men who have developed a new eloquence of their own will be something new to the public. Mark it well. It's "contracting out."

Before the final struggle is over late this year, Reuther and his colleagues will make that phrase as famous a household word as their "guaranteed annual wage."

"Contracting out" merely is the corporate practice of calling in outside contractors to supply skilled labor for some task such as carpentering, electrical work, honing up some machines or building some new structures. The outsiders are union men. But they don't belong to Reuther's United Auto Workers. They are members of the AFL-CIO building and construction trades unions whose leaders Reuther has been berating for years.

Now, says Reuther, who is co-chairman of the UAW's Skilled Trades Dept. (some 200,000 strong), this must stop if there are auto union men available and willing to do the work inside the plant. This involves tens of thousands of jobs and hundreds of millions of dollars.

The companies have said, in effect, that contracting out really is no business of the auto union. It's a management right, the executives argue.

But the federal courts have ruled that the companies must bargain with the auto union over such practices - call it contracting out or sub-contracting. This decision came down last February in a case involving General Motors' effort to change operations at its South Gate, Calif., plant. A shift in operations affected six jobs. The men were given other work. But the union sued, saying that the company had to negotiate with it anyway merely on principle - even if no one was laid off at the moment. And the union won.

So Reuther and his colleagues will go into negotiations soon and demand that before there is contracting out, the work must be offered to UAW men who are on layoff, on shorter hours or have not been offered the work.

There are other demands involving sub-contracting. But essentially the union wants control of the work and the jobs. The new technology and "computerology," says the auto union, is wiping out jobs and what is left should go to the auto union members.

And the UAW wants a joint labor-management committee to decide such issues. Furthermore, the union demands that future contracts shall give the UAW skilled tradesmen the "right to strike" when necessary to enforce their position on contracting out.

Management is not about to dash out to buy pens for the signing of such a pact. The companies know they will have to give skilled workers a bigger raise than the other hourly rated employes. This will make it more costly to repair and extend or maintain plants. And it will be more and more desirable to put in new automation and computer operations - as well as to contract out.

Eventually there will be a showdown. The companies will insist on their rights to bring in contractors. The auto union skilled workers are of such a mood they will picket.

The outside construction trades unionists, who have the Teamsters with them, aren't often deterred by "enemy" picket lines. It will be a noisy show.

But it is coming. Just look behind the rhetoric.

On each end of the serving table fruit punch was poured from large silver punch bowls. Frozen yellow and white daisies floated inside the punch.

Following the reception a wedding dinner was held at the home of the bride's parents. Mr. and Mrs. McLaurin held the dinner for the couple and relatives. It was served buffet style for 30 guests, before the young couple left for their honeymoon.

The groom will spend three months at Dubuque, Iowa, as part of his training in mechanical engineering, before returning to the University of Cincinnati, in Ohio. Mr. and Mrs. Kelley will both continue their schooling at the University.

Mulled wine tastes wonderful on a cool rainy night -- especially if you serve it to guests gathered around the wood-burning fireplace! To make the wine, simply heat dry red wine with sugar to taste and a bag of cinnamon sticks, cloves and blades of mace.

A3c and Mrs. Garry David Ferrell

Brenda Kay McCoy June Bride of A3c Garry Ferrell

BELL CITY -- Assorted floral arrangements among greenery and nine candled twin candelabra formed the altar setting for the wedding June 17 of Miss Brenda Kay McCoy and A3c Garry David Ferrell.

The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Billy Moore of Butler at the Church of Christ. Recorded music was provided, with candles lit by the Misses Jeannie and Dannine McCoy of Kansas City, Kan., and Karen and Terry Moore of Butler, nieces and nephews of the bride.

The former Miss McCoy is the daughter of Mrs. Zelma McCoy, and A3c Ferrell is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Leon Hudson of St. Louis.

Given in marriage by her brother, Benton McCoy of Lee's Summit, the bride wore a formal gown of peau de soie she had styled herself. It was designed with buttoned sleeves and a back buttoned bodice featuring a lowered round neckline surrounded with lace appliques. The train was secured with a tie bow waistband. Her fingertip veil of silk illusion was attached to a cabbage rose of self material, and she carried an orchid surrounded with white carnations and lilies of the valley, all tipped in blue.

The bride's twin sister, Miss Linda McCoy, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were the Misses Paula Roberts of Oran, Carla Moore of Butler, and Lanna Hudson of St. Louis, sister of the bridegroom. They wore formal gowns of blue bonded crepe styled with scoop necklines and soft box pleats at the waistlines. Their nosetip veils of blue net were secured to a net-covered crown, and they carried bouquets of blue tipped carnations.

The flower girl was Candy Hudson, sister of the bridegroom. She was dressed in a street - length gown of blue whipped cream with an overskirt of blue lace, and carried a basket of rose petals. Ringbearers were Sheryl McCoy of Kansas City, and Bradley Engram of Oran, niece and nephew of the bride.

Airman Ferrell chose Colie B. Taylor Jr. of Morley as best man, and groomsmen were Herman Uelsmann of Morley, Ronnie Nichols of Bell City, and Darrel McCoy of Kansas City, brother of the bride.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held in the Vanduser city hall. The serving table was covered with a blue clothing overlaid with white lace, centered with a four - tiered wedding cake made by the bride and her mother. Twin candleholders with blue candles were on each side of the cake, and crystal punch bowls were placed at each end of the table.

Serving the guests were Mrs. Darrel McCoy, Mrs. Benton McCoy and Mrs. Kenneth McCoy, sisters - in - law of the bride. Miss Pattie Bollinger of Oran presided at the guest book.

The new Mrs. Ferrell is a 1967 graduate of the Oran high school. Ferrell, a 1965 graduate of Scott Central high school, has served a year in the air force. He is stationed at the Brooks air force base in the Aerospace Medical Center at San Antonio.

Cepeda, Brock Named All-Star Starters

ST. LOUIS -- First Baseman Orlando Cepeda and Left Fielder Lou Brock of the Cardinals were picked to start for the National League All-Star team in the game at Anaheim, Calif., on July 11 as the vote of players, managers and coaches was revealed Wednesday.

But Catcher Tim McCarver, enjoying his best season, finished a distant second to veteran Joe Torre of the Atlanta Braves.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Willie Mays will be among the missing when the National League All-Stars take the field to oppose the American League July 11 at Anaheim, because the players, managers and coaches failed to name him to the starting line-up.

Mays, a super performer who had been a starter for 13 straight years since he came out of the Army in 1954, undoubtedly will be on the team. Manager Walt Alston of the Los Angeles Dodgers will pick the pitchers and the rest of the 25-man squad.

The 36-year-old outfielder who is second to Babe Ruth in career home runs finished fourth among the outfielders in the voting. Under a change in the rules, effected last year by Commissioner William Eckert, the first three outfielders are the starters, regardless of their positions.

Roberto Clemente of Pittsburgh polled 248 votes, Hank Aaron of the Atlanta Braves got 216 and Lou Brock of the St. Louis Cardinals drew 116. Mays' total was 77. Both Clemente and Aaron normally are right fielders and Brock is a left fielder so Alston probably will shift Aaron to center

Gene Alley, Pittsburgh shortstop, drew the most votes with 250, tops in both leagues. A total of 285 votes were cast but Pittsburgh had 27. As players were not permitted to vote for their own teammates, Alley thus received 250 of a possible 258.

Pittsburgh put three men on the starting eight, pitchers excluded. Bill Mazeroski, Alley's double play partner at second base, received 218 votes and was an easy winner along with Alley and Clemente.

Orlando Cepeda, the St. Louis Cardinals first baseman who is having a fine year, outlistanced the opposition with 219 votes, joining outfielder Brock as Card representatives.

Joe Torre, the Atlanta catcher who has been out with injuries, won by a comfortable margin with 187 votes to runnerup Tim McCarver of St. Louis with 62. That gave Atlanta double representation with Aaron and Torre.

The closest fight was for third base where Richie Allen of the Philadelphia Phillies was the winner with 148 votes over Tony Perez of Cincinnati who had 75.

Alston will announce his pitchers Friday and the rest of the squad July 6. There must be at least one from each club on the team. Starters, except pitchers, must play at least the first three innings. Pitchers can not go more than three, except in extra innings.

No less than 15 outfielders got votes. Following Mays' fourth-place total of 77, came Pete Rose of Cincinnati 66, Jimmy Wynn of Houston 55, Rusty Staub of Houston, 27, Billy Williams of Chicago 19, Curt Flood of St. Louis 14, Adolfo Phillips of Chicago 4, Tommy Davis of New York 3, Matty Alou of Pittsburgh 3, Willie Stargell of Pittsburgh 3, John Callison of Philadelphia 2 and Vada Pinson of Cincinnati 2.

Brock was the only left-handed batter in the starting line-up. He and Alley were the only newcomers who had never started. The three repeaters were Aaron, Clemente and Torre. Of the 1966 crops, first baseman Willie McCovey of San Francisco, second baseman Joe Morgan of Houston, third baseman Ron Santo of Chicago, shortstop Leo Cardenas of Cincinnati, who is injured, and Mays did not repeat.

THESE ARE the football stadium and the baseball stadium for which Jackson County residents gave better than 2-to-1 approval to $43 million in bonds Tuesday. The baseball stadium is designed to accommodate 45,500 fans and the football stadium, 75,000. The roof sections would ride on railroad tracks and could be moved into place over the gridiron or adjacent baseball diamond in foul weather.

Anybody For A Recount

Associated Press Sports Writer

Anybody for a recount?

Willie Mays left a couple hundred embarrassed All-Star electors in his wake Wednesday when, a few hours after the announcement that he had been left out of the National League's starting line-up for the first time since 1954, he hit two homers and two singles in San Francisco's 9-1 pounding of St. Louis.

The peerless Giant slugger finished fourth in the voting for outfielders, receiving 39 fewer votes than Lou Brock of St. Louis. Willie is virtually certain to be named to the team by Manager Walt Alston of the Dodgers, but for the first time since 1954 he won't be a starter.

Willie confesses that "I'm not having what anyone would call a fantastic year," — anyone named Willie Mays, that is; he's hitting .293 with 13 homers and 37 RBI — but you couldn't prove that by the Cards.

In other National League action, Chicago won a doubleheader from Pittsburgh 4-2 and 3-1, Los Angeles overcame Cincinnati 7-5, Houston beat Atlanta 4-2 and Philadelphia edged New York 6-5.

Both of Mays' singles came in the third inning when the Giants scored six times, giving Ray Sadecki a commanding lead against his old teammates that he had no trouble holding.

The first homer was delivered in the sixth inning and the second — No. 555 of his career — came in the eighth. Both were off reliever Al Jackson.

The amazing Cubs made it nine victories in 10 outings with their pair of triumphs over the Pirates. Ferguson Jenkins won the opener, his 10th of the season, and Ray Culp allowed just three hits in the nightcap. Adolfo Phillips hit a three-run homer in the first game and ignited the go-ahead rally with a double in the second.

The Dodgers spotted the Reds five runs, then came back on homers by John Roseboro and Jim Lefebvre, a two-run double by Lou Johnson and three runs on Cincinnati errors. The last two broke a 5-5 tie as Ron Hunt and Willie Davis came in when Chico Ruiz bobbled a grounder by Al Ferrara.

Jimmy Wynn came in on a wild pitch by Phil Niekro with the bases loaded and two out in the ninth, spurring the Astros to their victory, which broke an eight-game losing streak. Jackie Brandt followed with a single for the clinching run. Dave Giusti held the Braves to five hits, striking out 10.

Rich Allen's three-run homer in the seventh followed by Bill White's solo blast won the game for the Phillies. Ken Boyer's two-run triple sparked a three-run first inning for the Mets.

"I wasn't thinking home run," admitted Eddie Stanky, manager of rampaging Chicago White Sox.

COACHES ALL-AMERICA GAME TV SCOUTING REPORT AND ROSTERS

EAST VS. WEST

ATLANTA STADIUM, ATLANTA, GEORGIA

SATURDAY, JULY 8

COACHES: EAST -- Tom Cahill, Army, head coach; Vince Dooley, Georgia; and Jerry Claiborne, V.I.P., assistant coaches

WEST -- Bob Devaney, Nebraska, head coach; Odus Mitchell, West Texas State; and John McKay, USC, assistant coaches

OFFENSE: EAST -- Without a doubt, the East squad has probably the greatest scoring power of any All-Star squad at this level in the history of the game. There are two outstanding quarterbacks, Steve Spurrier (11) of Florida and Bob Griese (12) of Purdue. For running backs, the East has Floyd Little (44) of Syracuse and Nick Eddy (47) of Notre Dame, who will be playing fullback in this game. Gene Washington (85) of Michigan State and Dave Dunaway (86) of Duke are excellent pass receivers. The East should be able to score with such outstanding offensive personnel.

WEST -- Although not as impressive as the East's squad, the West does have halfback Mel Farr (22) of UCLA, considered by many as the best running back in the country in 1966. And then there is fullback Ray McDonald (32) of Idaho, who many felt was the best fullback in college football last year. The quarterback assignment will go to either Jon Brittenum (15) of Arkansas or James Burris (16) of Houston. Halfback Rod Sherman (12) of USC is an excellent pass receiver. End Ben Hart (88) of Oklahoma was a superb pass receiver for the Sooners for three years.

SUMMARY -- On paper, the East holds a big edge in this department because it has a group of backs who can do everything so well. The East probably will pass more than the West unless the latter falls behind early in the game by a touchdown or two. It is hard to remember an All-Star team in recent years which has more offensive punch than this East squad.

We'll have a look at the defense and tradition tomorrow.

Orlando Cepeda, the St. Louis Cardinals first baseman who is having a fine year, outlistanced the opposition with 219 votes, joining outfielder Brock as Card representatives.

Joe Torre, the Atlanta catcher who has been out with injuries, won by a comfortable margin with 187 votes to runnerup Tim McCarver of St. Louis with 62. That gave Atlanta double representation with Aaron and Torre.

The closest fight was for third base where Richie Allen of the Philadelphia Phillies was the winner with 148 votes over Tony Perez of Cincinnati who had 75.

Alston will announce his pitchers Friday and the rest of the squad July 6. There must be at least one from each club on the team. Starters, except pitchers, must play at least the first three innings. Pitchers can not go more than three, except in extra innings.

No less than 15 outfielders got votes. Following Mays' fourth-place total of 77, came Pete Rose of Cincinnati 66, Jimmy Wynn of Houston 55, Rusty Staub of Houston, 27, Billy Williams of Chicago 19, Curt Flood of St. Louis 14, Adolfo Phillips of Chicago 4, Tommy Davis of New York 3, Matty Alou of Pittsburgh 3, Willie Stargell of Pittsburgh 3, John Callison of Philadelphia 2 and Vada Pinson of Cincinnati 2.

Brock was the only left-handed batter in the starting line-up. He and Alley were the only newcomers who had never started. The three repeaters were Aaron, Clemente and Torre. Of the 1966 crops, first baseman Willie McCovey of San Francisco, second baseman Joe Morgan of Houston, third baseman Ron Santo of Chicago, shortstop Leo Cardenas of Cincinnati, who is injured, and Mays did not repeat.

THESE ARE the football stadium and the baseball stadium for which Jackson County residents gave better than 2-to-1 approval to $43 million in bonds Tuesday. The baseball stadium is designed to accommodate 45,500 fans and the football stadium, 75,000. The roof sections would ride on railroad tracks and could be moved into place over the gridiron or adjacent baseball diamond in foul weather.

Anybody For A Recount

Associated Press Sports Writer

Anybody for a recount?

Willie Mays left a couple hundred embarrassed All-Star electors in his wake Wednesday when, a few hours after the announcement that he had been left out of the National League's starting line-up for the first time since 1954, he hit two homers and two singles in San Francisco's 9-1 pounding of St. Louis.

The peerless Giant slugger finished fourth in the voting for outfielders, receiving 39 fewer votes than Lou Brock of St. Louis. Willie is virtually certain to be named to the team by Manager Walt Alston of the Dodgers, but for the first time since 1954 he won't be a starter.

Willie confesses that "I'm not having what anyone would call a fantastic year," — anyone named Willie Mays, that is; he's hitting .293 with 13 homers and 37 RBI — but you couldn't prove that by the Cards.

In other National League action, Chicago won a doubleheader from Pittsburgh 4-2 and 3-1, Los Angeles overcame Cincinnati 7-5, Houston beat Atlanta 4-2 and Philadelphia edged New York 6-5.

Both of Mays' singles came in the third inning when the Giants scored six times, giving Ray Sadecki a commanding lead against his old teammates that he had no trouble holding.

The first homer was delivered in the sixth inning and the second — No. 555 of his career — came in the eighth. Both were off reliever Al Jackson.

The amazing Cubs made it nine victories in 10 outings with their pair of triumphs over the Pirates. Ferguson Jenkins won the opener, his 10th of the season, and Ray Culp allowed just three hits in the nightcap. Adolfo Phillips hit a three-run homer in the first game and ignited the go-ahead rally with a double in the second.

The Dodgers spotted the Reds five runs, then came back on homers by John Roseboro and Jim Lefebvre, a two-run double by Lou Johnson and three runs on Cincinnati errors. The last two broke a 5-5 tie as Ron Hunt and Willie Davis came in when Chico Ruiz bobbled a grounder by Al Ferrara.

Jimmy Wynn came in on a wild pitch by Phil Niekro with the bases loaded and two out in the ninth, spurring the Astros to their victory, which broke an eight-game losing streak. Jackie Brandt followed with a single for the clinching run. Dave Giusti held the Braves to five hits, striking out 10.

Rich Allen's three-run homer in the seventh followed by Bill White's solo blast won the game for the Phillies. Ken Boyer's two-run triple sparked a three-run first inning for the Mets.

"I wasn't thinking home run," admitted Eddie Stanky, manager of rampaging Chicago White Sox.

COACHES ALL-AMERICA GAME TV SCOUTING REPORT AND ROSTERS

EAST VS. WEST

ATLANTA STADIUM, ATLANTA, GEORGIA

SATURDAY, JULY 8

COACHES: EAST -- Tom Cahill, Army, head coach; Vince Dooley, Georgia; and Jerry Claiborne, V.I.P., assistant coaches

WEST -- Bob Devaney, Nebraska, head coach; Odus Mitchell, West Texas State; and John McKay, USC, assistant coaches

OFFENSE: EAST -- Without a doubt, the East squad has probably the greatest scoring power of any All-Star squad at this level in the history of the game. There are two outstanding quarterbacks, Steve Spurrier (11) of Florida and Bob Griese (12) of Purdue. For running backs, the East has Floyd Little (44) of Syracuse and Nick Eddy (47) of Notre Dame, who will be playing fullback in this game. Gene Washington (85) of Michigan State and Dave Dunaway (86) of Duke are excellent pass receivers. The East should be able to score with such outstanding offensive personnel.

WEST -- Although not as impressive as the East's squad, the West does have halfback Mel Farr (22) of UCLA, considered by many as the best running back in the country in 1966. And then there is fullback Ray McDonald (32) of Idaho, who many felt was the best fullback in college football last year. The quarterback assignment will go to either Jon Brittenum (15) of Arkansas or James Burris (16) of Houston. Halfback Rod Sherman (12) of USC is an excellent pass receiver. End Ben Hart (88) of Oklahoma was a superb pass receiver for the Sooners for three years.

SUMMARY -- On paper, the East holds a big edge in this department because it has a group of backs who can do everything so well. The East probably will pass more than the West unless the latter falls behind early in the game by a touchdown or two. It is hard to remember an All-Star team in recent years which has more offensive punch than this East squad.

We'll have a look at the defense and tradition tomorrow.

Bill to End Property Tax Passes

JEFFERSON CITY AP -- The Missouri House Wednesday sent to the governor a bill eliminating a 3-cent state tax on property. The savings would total about $2,600,000 a year for taxpayers but a vocal minority said it would only amount to about $.25 for the average taxpayer.

The opponents said the state could better use the money for improving schools and mental health programs. They called it just a political campaign gimmick for candidates to tell voters they had saved them taxes.

Sponsors replied the tax was first levied after the Civil War when the state had no such sources of revenue as the income tax, sales tax and others.

They said it would help give local governments a monopoly on the property tax as a source of revenue.

Actually it would not eliminate all state property taxes. There still will be a 3-cent state tax on property for the blind pension fund.

The vote sending the bill to the governor was 150-9.

Also sent to the governor was a bill to set up an executive mansion advisory commission composed of the widows of former governors. For the relatively honorary job they would receive $250 a month.

The House took up the bill out of order today because Mrs. Guy B. Park, widow of a former governor, was reported in a hospital.

The House asked for House-Senate conferences on the key insurance industry regulating bill and on the first omnibus appropriation bill that was passed by the Senate Tuesday.

The House also agreed to a conference on a bill creating a State Board of Health.

Passed and sent to the Senate was the second omnibus, or catchall, appropriation bill. It contains more than $5 million, including money to raise salaries of employes in rural state institutions and providing state aid to the college residence centers in Independence.

Also passed by the Senate and sent to the governor was a bill raising the revenue director, Tom David, from $15,000 to $19,000 a year, Comptroller and Budget Driector John C. Vaughn from $15,000 to $20,000 and Revenue Collector Tom Gilstrap from $10,000 to $12,000.

The Senate gave judges across the state a blanket $4,000 a year raise after accepting a House amendment that would make the raise not effective until Jan. 1, 1969.

Sen. Albert M. Spradling, D-Cape Girardeau, said "It seems the House doesn't want the judiciary to have a raise until the legislature and executives of the state get one."

A recently passed bill grants legislators a raise from $4,800 to $8,400, but isn't effective until the 1969 term begins.

Revenue Bonds Meet With Voter Approval

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Revenue bond and annexation issues met with voter approval in a number of Missouri communities Tuesday.

The biggest was for $1 million for sewer and water systems improvement in Maryville. The vote was 1,179 to 427, exceeding the legal four-sevenths requirement by 263. The proposal had been defeated by a more than 2-to-1 margin on Feb. 14.

In West Plains, the vote was 362 to 53 in favor of $200,000 in bonds for another water and sewer improvement program. Annexation of 250 acres also was approved 344 to 71.

Carl Junction voters approved a $315,000 bond issue to build water and sewer systems 355 to 87, and for annexation of 515 acres to the city 351 to 87.

Briar Brook Development Corp., a private agency formed by Jasper County businessmen, plans to build a $1 million country club and 550 houses on the tract.

In Holden, Mo., a former patrolman, Jack Pirch, defeated former Police Chief Jack Parker for city marshal. Pirch received 352 votes to 74 for Parker. Pirch led by almost the same margin in last week's primary.

The Holden city council instituted the city marshal's office instead of police chief as the result of a feud between Mayor B. A. Bonewitz and Parker, who was chief at the time.

An $840,000 general obligation bond issue was approved in North Kansas City by a 4-to-1 margin. The money will be used for highway right-of-way acquisition.

Voters of Dearborn in Platte County defeated a $55,000 general obligation bond issue but voting on a $117,000 revenue bond issue was so close the issue had not been determined late Tuesday night.

Larry N. Reeves, 56-year-old automobile mechanic, was elected sheriff of Platte County, defeating his Republican opponent, Douglas Seneker, 2,444 to 2,183.

Frozen whole peeled potatoes can go into that stew or around a roast and save you preparation time.

BEATING THE HEAT was Chuck Tinnon, who takes a plunge into 18 feet of water at the Wolf hole, east of Interstate 55 on highway 62 east of Miner. Two standing on the railroad bridge awaiting a plunge are unidentified.

Missourians Head Peace Officers

KANSAS CITY (AP) - Two husky Missouri peace officers now head two of the nation's major law enforcement organizations.

One is Sheriff Bill Hemphill of Barry County, who earlier this month was selected to head the National Sheriff's Association at its annual convention in Las Vegas.

The other is Trooper Wayne Oberhelman, Lee's Summit, with Troop A of the Missouri Highway Patrol, who last week was chosen as president of the National Peace Officers Association at El Paso, Tex.

They are not far apart in size. Sheriff Hemphill is 6 feet, 4 inches tall and weighs 215 pounds. Trooper Oberhelman is 6-2 and weighs 200.

Both moved into the top post of their organizations from the rank of vice president. Hemphill moved up through the ranks of seven vice presidential positions. Oberhelman served three years as a member of the board of directors and then one year as vice president.

Hemphill's county, in southern Missouri, covers only 790 square miles with a population of 18,921. It is believed to be one of the smallest to have its sheriff chosen to lead the organization of 23,000 members.

The 49-year-old officer formerly was in the feed wholesale and retail business at Purdy. He sold out in the spring of 1952, ran for sheriff on the Republican ticket and has held the office ever since.

He is especially proud of the 50 uniformed horsemen. Its 20-man drill team won first place last year in the Pageant of the Rockies rodeo at Colorado Springs.

"These officers are a big help in emergencies," Sheriff Hemphill said. "They help with traffic in this heavily traveled tourist area. They help search for lost persons; rescue work in the case of boating accidents and to set up road blocks. Two of our possemen have planes which are a big help."

Trooper Oberhelman has been with the highway patrol as long as Hemphill has been a sheriff - 15 years. The 42-year-old head of the 9,500 member organization, has two hobbies.

One is markmanship, a field which takes in his whole family, his wife, Bettie; a daughter, Wendy, 18, and a son, Gary, 15. At pistol matches in the El Paso convention, Gary won first place in a special children's match. Mrs. Oberhelman won fourth in the women's match and Wendy placed seventh. Trooper Oberhelman finished fifth in a .22 caliber match.

Oberhelman recently won the Kansas rapid-fire revolver award at Topeka.

His other hobby is flying. He has a commercial pilot's license. Oberhelman was born on a farm north of Manhattan.

Sponsors replied the tax was first levied after the Civil War when the state had no such sources of revenue as the income tax, sales tax and others.

They said it would help give local governments a monopoly on the property tax as a source of revenue.

Actually it would not eliminate all state property taxes. There still will be a 3-cent state tax on property for the blind pension fund.

The vote sending the bill to the governor was 150-9.

Also sent to the governor was a bill to set up an executive mansion advisory commission composed of the widows of former governors. For the relatively honorary job they would receive $250 a month.

The House took up the bill out of order today because Mrs. Guy B. Park, widow of a former governor, was reported in a hospital.

The House asked for House-Senate conferences on the key insurance industry regulating bill and on the first omnibus appropriation bill that was passed by the Senate Tuesday.

The House also agreed to a conference on a bill creating a State Board of Health.

Passed and sent to the Senate was the second omnibus, or catchall, appropriation bill. It contains more than $5 million, including money to raise salaries of employes in rural state institutions and providing state aid to the college residence centers in Independence.

Also passed by the Senate and sent to the governor was a bill raising the revenue director, Tom David, from $15,000 to $19,000 a year, Comptroller and Budget Driector John C. Vaughn from $15,000 to $20,000 and Revenue Collector Tom Gilstrap from $10,000 to $12,000.

The Senate gave judges across the state a blanket $4,000 a year raise after accepting a House amendment that would make the raise not effective until Jan. 1, 1969.

Sen. Albert M. Spradling, D-Cape Girardeau, said "It seems the House doesn't want the judiciary to have a raise until the legislature and executives of the state get one."

A recently passed bill grants legislators a raise from $4,800 to $8,400, but isn't effective until the 1969 term begins.

Revenue Bonds Meet With Voter Approval

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Revenue bond and annexation issues met with voter approval in a number of Missouri communities Tuesday.

The biggest was for $1 million for sewer and water systems improvement in Maryville. The vote was 1,179 to 427, exceeding the legal four-sevenths requirement by 263. The proposal had been defeated by a more than 2-to-1 margin on Feb. 14.

In West Plains, the vote was 362 to 53 in favor of $200,000 in bonds for another water and sewer improvement program. Annexation of 250 acres also was approved 344 to 71.

Carl Junction voters approved a $315,000 bond issue to build water and sewer systems 355 to 87, and for annexation of 515 acres to the city 351 to 87.

Briar Brook Development Corp., a private agency formed by Jasper County businessmen, plans to build a $1 million country club and 550 houses on the tract.

In Holden, Mo., a former patrolman, Jack Pirch, defeated former Police Chief Jack Parker for city marshal. Pirch received 352 votes to 74 for Parker. Pirch led by almost the same margin in last week's primary.

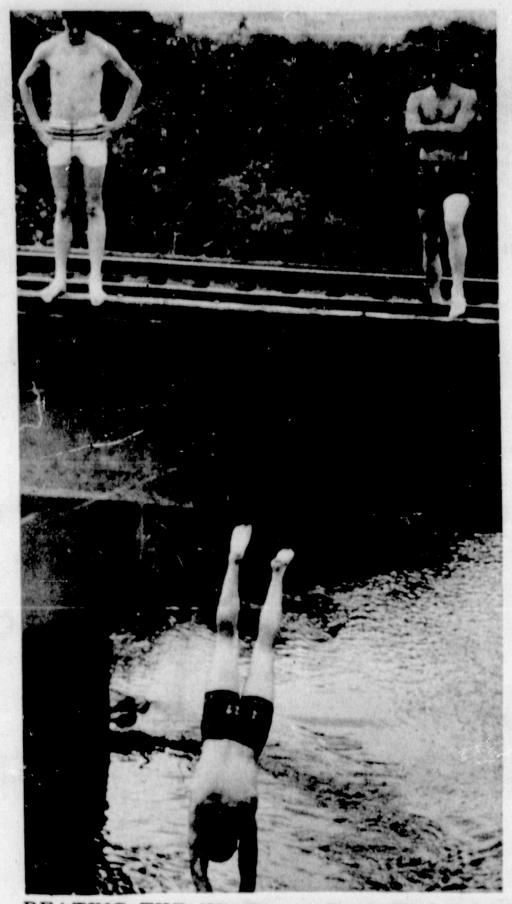
The Holden city council instituted the city marshal's office instead of police chief as the result of a feud between Mayor B. A. Bonewitz and Parker, who was chief at the time.

An $840,000 general obligation bond issue was approved in North Kansas City by a 4-to-1 margin. The money will be used for highway right-of-way acquisition.

Voters of Dearborn in Platte County defeated a $55,000 general obligation bond issue but voting on a $117,000 revenue bond issue was so close the issue had not been determined late Tuesday night.

Larry N. Reeves, 56-year-old automobile mechanic, was elected sheriff of Platte County, defeating his Republican opponent, Douglas Seneker, 2,444 to 2,183.

Frozen whole peeled potatoes can go into that stew or around a roast and save you preparation time.



BEATING THE HEAT was Chuck Tinnon, who takes a plunge into 18 feet of water at the Wolf hole, east of Interstate 55 on highway 62 east of Miner. Two standing on the railroad bridge awaiting a plunge are unidentified.

Missourians Head Peace Officers

KANSAS CITY (AP) - Two husky Missouri peace officers now head two of the nation's major law enforcement organizations.

One is Sheriff Bill Hemphill of Barry County, who earlier this month was selected to head the National Sheriff's Association at its annual convention in Las Vegas.

The other is Trooper Wayne Oberhelman, Lee's Summit, with Troop A of the Missouri Highway Patrol, who last week was chosen as president of the National Peace Officers Association at El Paso, Tex.

They are not far apart in size. Sheriff Hemphill is 6 feet, 4 inches tall and weighs 215 pounds. Trooper Oberhelman is 6-2 and weighs 200.

Both moved into the top post of their organizations from the rank of vice president. Hemphill moved up through the ranks of seven vice presidential positions. Oberhelman served three years as a member of the board of directors and then one year as vice president.

Hemphill's county, in southern Missouri, covers only 790 square miles with a population of 18,921. It is believed to be one of the smallest to have its sheriff chosen to lead the organization of 23,000 members.

The 49-year-old officer formerly was in the feed wholesale and retail business at Purdy. He sold out in the spring of 1952, ran for sheriff on the Republican ticket and has held the office ever since.

He is especially proud of the Barry County Sheriff's Posse of 50 uniformed horsemen. Its 20-man drill team won first place last year in the Pageant of the Rockies rodeo at Colorado Springs.

"These officers are a big help in emergencies," Sheriff Hemphill said. "They help with traffic in this heavily traveled tourist area. They help search for lost persons; rescue work in the case of boating accidents and to set up road blocks. Two of our possemen have planes which are a big help."

Trooper Oberhelman has been with the highway patrol as long as Hemphill has been a sheriff - 15 years. The 42-year-old head of the 9,500 member organization, has two hobbies.

One is markmanship, a field which takes in his whole family, his wife, Bettie; a daughter, Wendy, 18, and a son, Gary, 15. At pistol matches in the El Paso convention, Gary won first place in a special children's match. Mrs. Oberhelman won fourth in the women's match and Wendy placed seventh. Trooper Oberhelman finished fifth in a .22 caliber match.

Oberhelman recently won the Kansas rapid-fire revolver award at Topeka.

His other hobby is flying. He has a commercial pilot's license.

Oberhelman was born on a farm north of Manhattan.

Poll Tests Knowledge about Government

COLUMBIA, Mo., - At a meeting of the Mid-American Assembly in Iowa City, legislators and informed citizens from four states including Missouri discussed the future of state legislatures.

A recurring point in the conversations was that the public simply was not informed about what happens in state government. The mass media was accused of focusing heavily on national and international events, to the virtual exclusion of news from the state capital. News media representatives, however, countered that they provided adequate coverage of state politics but that the general public is seldom much interested in it.

Because of this controversy, the Public Opinion Survey Unit of the University of Missouri decided to analyze its data to see how media exposure is related to knowledge about state affairs. POSU had asked its statewide sample of nearly 1,000 adult Missourians a series of questions about their media consumption and about state politics. The interviews occurred in June 1966, shortly after a Missouri legislative session where such a vital matter as the budget was at issue. The 1965 reapportionment decisions were also being rehashed in capitol cloakrooms. Most mass media in the state had provided daily or weekly coverage of these events in Jefferson City, including the activities of both the governor and the state legislature.

The two simplest questions POSU asked about Missouri state politics were these; (1) "On the subject of state politics, have you ever heard of Warren Hearnes? Can you identify him; that is, what does he do?" and (2) "Do you know if the Missouri state legislature did or did not hold a session this year?"

On the first question, 76 per cent of the respondents correctly identified Hearnes as the present governor of Missouri. Of the remaining 24 per cent, half had heard of that name but couldn't remember who he was, and the remainder hadn't heard of him.

On the second question, less than half of the adult Missourians (45 per cent) correctly knew that the legislature had met in 1966. The remaining 55 per cent didn't know whether or not it had met, or else, thought it hadn't met in 1966.

Knowledge about state affairs was related to media exposure, but it was related in peculiar ways. As Table 1 indicates, there is a very strong association between the number of newspapers an individual regularly reads, and his ability to answer correctly the two questions about state affairs. Extensive newspaper reading is accompanied by greater knowledge about state politics. A similar relationship was found between magazine reading and knowledge.

TABLE 1

	No. Newspapers Read Regularly
	0	1	2	3
Identified Hearnes as Mo. Governor	42%	74%	83%	90%
Couldn't identify Hearnes	58	26	17	10
Knew Mo. legislature met in 1966	20%	38%	54%	61%
Didn't know whether legislature met	80	62	46	39

When the medium changes from something that must be read to something that can be listened to or watched, much different patterns appear. With the exception of individuals who are never exposed to any mass media including radio, there is no consistent relationship between knowledge about state politics and the number of hours one listens to the radio. With television, however, there is. Table 2 points out that those who never watch television shows of any kind (the cultural isolates described above) and those who watch it most frequently (30 hours or more a week) were least able to answer the questions about state politics. For the latter, apparently, television has little public affairs informational impact. Those most knowledgeable about state politics are those who limit their television watching and supplement it with newspaper reading.

TABLE 2

	Hours Watching Television per Week
	None	30 or Less	Over 30
Identified Hearnes as Mo. Governor	65%	78%	61%
Couldn't identify Hearnes	35	22	39
Knew Mo. legislature met in 1966	38%	47%	38%
Didn't know whether legislature met	62	53	62

None of these figures prove that the mass media constitute the primary sources for information about state politics.

Stoddard's ASCS Operation Big

By Warren Sokolis

BLOOMFIELD - Stoddard county, with about 4,000 farms, is one of the largest counties in the state in area, total cropland, total productivity and number of individual farms.

Because of the important role agriculture plays in the county's economy, Stoddard's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service office "is one of the largest in the state for volume of work handled," George E. Pulliam, ASCS office manager, noted.

The agency has been a part of the county for more than 30 years and has had office locations at Dexter and Bloomfield. It is now located in a new building on highway 25 in Bloomfield and shares the building with two other United States department of agriculture agencies, the Soil Conservation Service and Farmers Home Administration.

"The function of the agency is to administrer federal farm programs to farmers of the county. Programs being administered now are available to farmers under the food and agriculture act of 1965," Pulliam explained.

"These programs are administered on a voluntary basis and are designed to maintain stability in production and price of our major crops, cotton, feed grain and wheat.

"Present law provides for price support payments to participating farmers on that part of their production used domestically, bringing total farm income more in line with that of other industry," he continued.

"Annual cotton, feed grain and wheat payments total approximately $5 million under the present voluntary program."

Pulliam pointed out that since its beginning ASCS has promoted soil conservation practices, for which federal cost-sharing is available.

"Commodity loans through Commodity Credit Corporation are available on all major stored crops produced in the county, which is a useful source of interim financing or short term credit.

"Loans in excess of $2 million were processed following 1965 crops," Pulliam said.

"The combined programs administered by the local ASCS office add greatly to the overall economy of the county. The new office facility permits carrying out the objectives of the agency more efficiently."

If You Were the Judge

Bloodhound's Talented Sniff O.K. as Evidence

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Sam was sitting innocently on his front porch when a bloodhound, followed by several investigating policemen, bounded onto his porch. And, as Sam and the dog stared at each other, eyeball to eyeball, the police found some of the loot from a recent burglary in Sam's garage. The result? Sam was charged with pulling off the job.

In court, Sam was convicted bang-bang-bang. But, it was the "testimony" of the bloodhound that clinched the conviction. It seemed that once on the trail, the dog led the police directly to Sam.

"You can't take the word of that dog over mine," Sam argued on appeal. "I'm innocent! The dog's a four-legged liar."

"Not that dog," answered the district attorney. "He's a true thoroughbred with the ability of his breed to sniff out anyone. He's been on more right tracks than a train."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you affirm Sam's conviction on the "testimony" of a dog?

This is how the judge ruled: Yes! He held that when a bloodhound is of pure blood and of stock characterized by an acuteness of scent and power of discrimination, the results of his sniffing is admissible in court as evidence.

(Based upon a 1965 North Carolina Supreme Court Decision.)

TODAY'S LEGAL POINTER:

If you're given a check which you believe may "bounce" if you wait the time required for it to clear after you deposit it, you can play it safe by having the check certified at the bank of the person who gave it to you. Once certified, his bank, in effect, says that the check will be good when your bank presents it for collection.

(For personal guidance, see your local attorney.)

Ann Landers

Speed Can Produce Life Of Regret

Dear Ann Landers: Last weekend five teen-agers from our town were killed in an automobile accident. Four of these kids were friends of mine. One was an only child, and two were brothers.

The driver was going at a very high rate of speed and he lost control of the wheel. The car went through 25 guardrail posts and down a 40-foot enbankment. Every kid in the automobile had a broken neck. The funerals were like nightmares. You can't imagine the grief of the parents and grandparents and brothers and sisters of those kids who were killed. Classmates and friends felt AWFUL, but in a few weeks we will get over the sadness and think about something else. For the families of the kids who died, the pain will go on for a long, long time - maybe forever.

I just hope you will urge all teen-agers everywhere to ask themselves, "Could this terrible things have happened to me?" I admit I've been guilty of speeding and I have been in cars when the driver was going too fast. I was just lucker than the kids in the death car.

Pleast print my letter. If it will wake up just one teen-ager and make him realize that a few minutes of excitement could end in five funerals, I will feel it was worth the effort it took to write to you. -- A YOUNG MOURNER

Dear Young Mourner: I have received dozens of letters about this same accident. Yours said it best.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband bought me a parrot for Christmas. The bird is not only dirty as a pig but he makes an awful lot of noise. I can put up with the dirt and the noise all right, but lately that crazy bird has started to imitate the doorbell and I am half nuts running to the door and finding nobody there. Whenever this happens the parrot gives out a dirty laugh, as if he knows he put over a fast one.

Pleast tell me how to outwit this miserable but clever bird. -- NEW ORLEANS MOANER.

Dear Moaner: Replace the doorbell with a heavy knocker. They are not only decorative but practical. The bird may be clever but he'll have one heck of a time imitating THAT.

Dear Ann Landers: I am in love with a wonderful girl and I want to marry her. She is 17 and just finished high school. She wants to go to college and has won a scholarship which means she will surely go. The girl insists she loves me but she doesn't want to accept an engagement ring before she goes away. I am beginning to think she wants to run around when she gets to college. It seems to me that an engaged girl would pay more attention to her studies, which is what she is supposed to be in college for.

We have gone steady for two years and so far as I know she has been faithful. Please advise her to accept my ring so she will not be tempted to fool around. Thank you. --- MR. X.

Dear Mr. X: Why are you so eager to tie her up? Afraid she might meet someone else who is more appealing?

College means more than studying. It means meeting people and making comparisons and learning how the world works. A 17-year-old girl who would accept an engagement ring before she goes off to college has to have rocks in her head.

If you have trouble getting along with your parents. . if you can't get them to let you live your own life, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Bugged By Parents? How to Get More Freedom." Send 50¢ in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Judge Rescues Plans for Mass — Wedding in Park

NEW YORK (AP) — The city has lined up nine couples for an outdoor wed-in, a judge has promised to officiate, and a choir of 40 youngsters is practicing special music written for the occasion.

"They've lost their municipal minds," sighed Chief City Clerk Herman Katz in his office Wednesday.

Katz, who frequently presides over the standard one-couple-at-a-time ceremony, had turned down Parks Commissioner August Heckscher's request that he officiate at the wed-in Saturday.

But Criminal Court Judge Amos Basel agreed to take the job late Wednesday.

"I cleared this first with the judicial administration and they told me to go ahead," he said. "I assured them that it was not going to be a spectacle."

The wed-in— sort of a Saturday filip for Fun City's summer festival— was conceived by Mayor John V. Lindsay.

Two weeks ago they announced that the first 50 couples writing CUPID, care of the department, would assemble on the greensward of Brooklyn's Prospect Park and say, "I do."

Heckscher explained that at the turn of the century it was very big in Brooklyn to get married in the park, and this was an attempt to revive the old custom.

The response was better than anyone anticipated.

If You Were the Judge

Bloodhound's Talented Sniff O.K. as Evidence

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Sam was sitting innocently on his front porch when a bloodhound, followed by several investigating policemen, bounded onto his porch. And, as Sam and the dog stared at each other, eyeball to eyeball, the police found some of the loot from a recent burglary in Sam's garage. The result? Sam was charged with pulling off the job.

In court, Sam was convicted bang-bang-bang. But, it was the "testimony" of the bloodhound that clinched the conviction. It seemed that once on the trail, the dog led the police directly to Sam.

"You can't take the word of that dog over mine," Sam argued on appeal. "I'm innocent! The dog's a four-legged liar."

"Not that dog," answered the district attorney. "He's a true thoroughbred with the ability of his breed to sniff out anyone. He's been on more right tracks than a train."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you affirm Sam's conviction on the "testimony" of a dog?

This is how the judge ruled: Yes! He held that when a bloodhound is of pure blood and of stock characterized by an acuteness of scent and power of discrimination, the results of his sniffing is admissible in court as evidence.

(Based upon a 1965 North Carolina Supreme Court Decision.)

TODAY'S LEGAL POINTER:

If you're given a check which you believe may "bounce" if you wait the time required for it to clear after you deposit it, you can play it safe by having the check certified at the bank of the person who gave it to you. Once certified, his bank, in effect, says that the check will be good when your bank presents it for collection.

Ann Landers

Speed Can Produce Life Of Regret

Dear Ann Landers: Last weekend five teen-agers from our town were killed in an automobile accident. Four of these kids were friends of mine. One was an only child, and two were brothers.

The driver was going at a very high rate of speed and he lost control of the wheel. The car went through 25 guardrail posts and down a 40-foot enbankment. Every kid in the automobile had a broken neck. The funerals were like nightmares. You can't imagine the grief of the parents and grandparents and brothers and sisters of those kids who were killed. Classmates and friends felt AWFUL, but in a few weeks we will get over the sadness and think about something else. For the families of the kids who died, the pain will go on for a long, long time - maybe forever.

I just hope you will urge all teen-agers everywhere to ask themselves, "Could this terrible things have happened to me?" I admit I've been guilty of speeding and I have been in cars when the driver was going too fast. I was just lucker than the kids in the death car.

Pleast print my letter. If it will wake up just one teen-ager and make him realize that a few minutes of excitement could end in five funerals, I will feel it was worth the effort it took to write to you. -- A YOUNG MOURNER

Dear Young Mourner: I have received dozens of letters about this same accident. Yours said it best.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband bought me a parrot for Christmas. The bird is not only dirty as a pig but he makes an awful lot of noise. I can put up with the dirt and the noise all right, but lately that crazy bird has started to imitate the doorbell and I am half nuts running to the door and finding nobody there. Whenever this happens the parrot gives out a dirty laugh, as if he knows he put over a fast one.

Pleast tell me how to outwit this miserable but clever bird. -- NEW ORLEANS MOANER.

Dear Moaner: Replace the doorbell with a heavy knocker. They are not only decorative but practical. The bird may be clever but he'll have one heck of a time imitating THAT.

Dear Ann Landers: I am in love with a wonderful girl and I want to marry her. She is 17 and just finished high school. She wants to go to college and has won a scholarship which means she will surely go. The girl insists she loves me but she doesn't want to accept an engagement ring before she goes away. I am beginning to think she wants to run around when she gets to college. It seems to me that an engaged girl would pay more attention to her studies, which is what she is supposed to be in college for.

We have gone steady for two years and so far as I know she has been faithful. Please advise her to accept my ring so she will not be tempted to fool around. Thank you. --- MR. X.

Dear Mr. X: Why are you so eager to tie her up? Afraid she might meet someone else who is more appealing?

College means more than studying. It means meeting people and making comparisons and learning how the world works. A 17-year-old girl who would accept an engagement ring before she goes off to college has to have rocks in her head.

If you have trouble getting along with your parents. . if you can't get them to let you live your own life, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Bugged By Parents? How to Get More Freedom." Send 50¢ in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Judge Rescues Plans for Mass — Wedding in Park

NEW YORK (AP) — The city has lined up nine couples for an outdoor wed-in, a judge has promised to officiate, and a choir of 40 youngsters is practicing special music written for the occasion.

"They've lost their municipal minds," sighed Chief City Clerk Herman Katz in his office Wednesday.

Katz, who frequently presides over the standard one-couple-at-a- time ceremony, had turned down Parks Commissioner August Heckscher's request that he officiate at the wed-in Saturday.

But Criminal Court Judge Amos Basel agreed to take the job late Wednesday.

"I cleared this first with the judicial administration and they told me to go ahead," he said. "I assured them that it was not going to be a spectacle."

The wed-in— sort of a Saturday filip for Fun City's summer festival— was conceived by Mayor John V. Lindsay.

Two weeks ago they announced that the first 50 couples writing CUPID, care of the department, would assemble on the greensward of Brooklyn's Prospect Park and say, "I do."

Heckscher explained that at the turn of the century it was very big in Brooklyn to get married in the park, and this was an attempt to revive the old custom.

The response was better than anyone anticipated.

Propose P.T. Boat Museum for Memphis

MEMPHIS - Remember the P.T. boats, those sleek, fast-moving craft that struck terror into the hearts of the Japanese during World War II?

It was a P.T. boat that carried Gen. Douglas MacArthur to safety when he was ordered to leave the Philippines. And President John F. Kennedy was skipper of P. T. 109 when it was sunk near Bird Island in the Pacific.

Today, the navy doesn't have a single P.T. boat left in the fleet. There isn't even one of the small boats in the navy's museum in the Washington Navy Yard.

J. M. Newberry, a former crewman aboard a P.T. boat who now lives in Memphis, is spearheading a reunion of P.T. personnel in September. At the reunion, Newberry proposes to present plans for a P.T. boat museum to be built in Memphis.

The reunion of P. T. boat crew members is scheduled for Sept. 2-3 at the Sheraton-Peabody Hotel in Memphis.

A 20-ton section representing the cockpit system of a P. T. boat and which simulates a craft under way has been located and will be brought to Memphis for the reunion.

Rear Admiral E. M. Eller, director of Naval history, has provided Newberry with a set of blueprints for construction of a P.T. boat and the Memphian hopes to establish the museum around the facsimile. He estimates cust of the boat at $40,000.

"I think the museum is an excellent project that can have great value to veterans, the nation and citizens of tomorrow," Admiral Eller said.

The registration address for former P.T. crewmen interested in attending the Sept. 2-3 reunion is P. O. Box 202, Memphis, Tenn. 38101.

Area Farmers May Get Emergency Aid

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP — Everett Jose, state director of the Farmers Home Administration, said today he has recommended that more than a third of the counties in Missouri be designated as eligible for emergency loans.

"Farmers have sustained serious losses from excessive rains and flooding during the past 30 days," Jose said. "It will be very difficult for some farmers to obtain sufficient credit to continue in business from regular lenders."

Jose, who made his recommendation to Secretary of Agriculture Orville Freeman, said the rains and floods had come so late in the season that farmers were caught with $30 to $50 an acre invested in their crops, which for many will be a total loss.

He added that with ideal weather conditions it might be possible to plant some late soybean and forage crops.

Under the emergency program the interest rate to farmers is 3 per cent. The FHA maintains offices in each county to serve applicants.

Counties recommended for emergency designation are:

Adair, Andrew, Atchison, Boone, Buchanan, Butler, Caldwell, Calloway, Carroll, Charlton, Clark, Clay, Clinton, Cole, Cooper, Davies, DeKalb, Dunklin, Gasconade, Gentry, Grundy, Harrison, Holt, Howard, Jackson, Knox, Lafayette, Lewis, Livingston, Macon, Mercer, Mississippi, Moniteau, Montgomery, New Madrid, Nodaway, Osage, Pemiscot, Platte, Putnam, Randolph, Ray, Ripley, Saline, Scott, Schuyler, Scotland, Shelby, Stoddard and Worth.

an amendment to make packing plants pay for the inspections.

At that point majority leader Richard J. Rabbitt, D-St.Louis, adjourned the House for the night.

Earlier, Rabbitt charged the minority Republicans with causing the near-riotous behavior of the house.

The minority leader, Rep. R. J. (Bus) King, R-Clayton, said he resented the criticism from Rabbitt and thought he ought to apologize.

"Don't hold your breath," Rabbit replied.

Just before the quarrel between the leaders two Democrats, Reps. Thomas Ryan of Kansas City and Francis Saly of St. Louis, gaily trooped around the chamber spraying the place with deodorizer.

Some Democrats expressed anger at the action of the two men.

Miss Mansfield had been appearing at the Gus Stevens Restaurant and Supper Club in Biloxi. Her engagement began June 23 and was scheduled to end July 4. On week nights, she performed at a 9 p.m. dinner show and at the 11 p.m. supper show.

Brody had been Miss Mansfield's companion and lawyer. His wife had accused him in a divorce action recently of committing adultery with Miss Mansfield, who was separated from her third husband, Matt Cimber, a stage director. Miss Mansfield and Cimber had a child, Antonio, 1.

Miss Mansfield was born April 1933, in Bryn Mawr, Pa., and grew up in Phillipsburg, N.J. Her real name was Vera Jayne Palmer. Later she moved to Texas and was graduated from Highland Park High School in Dallas and attended the University of Texas and the University of California at Los Angeles.

Her ascent to fame came accidentally when a press agent managed to get her on a publicity junket to Florida for a Jane Russell movie. She happily posed for photographers in a skimpy red bikini and stole the show from Miss Russell and other glamor girls on the trip.

This brought her a contract at Warner Bros.
